Howard Named National Director

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah — Despite a twelfth-hour candidacy, John Howard, of Willow Street, was one of four people to be elected last week to a 4-year term on the board of directors for the National Holstein Association.

During the national convention, held last week in Salt Lake City, Utah, Howard made a last-hour announcement of his interest in serving on the board of directors. After being allowed two minutes to state his position and reasons for seeking office, he was subsequently elected.

Howard had been one of two Pennsylvanians considering running for a directorship, but he was not officially endorsed by the state association.

He lost endorsement as a result of a tie-breaking decision by the president of the state association.

The endorsed candidate, Dave Burket, of East Freedom, was also in the running for the national position, but failed to gain enough delegate votes.

In addition to Howard, also elected to the board were Francis Meehan, of Rexville, N.Y.; Tom Nunes, of Santa Rosa, Calif.; and, for a second term, Sherman Polinder, of Lynden, Wash.

The election of new officers was just part of the activities at the

Don't Forget Housing Expo

Next week, Tuesday and Wednesday, July 14 & 15, the 1992 Animal Housing Expo will be staged at the Lebanon County Fairgrounds. Sponsored by Penn State University Extension and agribusiness firms, the two-day program that is identical each day will feature expert speakers, demonstrations and commercial exhibits. Everyone is invited to attend.

At the PSU/PCC Summer Institute are from left, Walter Loy, Michael Cornman, Shelly Ogline, Jay Irwin, and Jason Barnett. Ogline received both the Walter Loy and the Jay Irwin award, Cornman was also a Jay Irwin award winner, and Barnett was also a Walter Loy award winner.

Leadership Through Involvement

SHIPPENSBURG (Cumberland Co.)—The thirty-second annual summer institute for 76 youth scholars was held at Shippensburg University last week.

Sponsored by Penn State University and the Pennsylvania Council of Cooperatives, the goal is to provide a learning experience for leadership through involvement.

Jay Irwin, retired Lancaster County agent, said he helped start the institute in 1961 and has seen many young people come and go from the institute into very excellent careers. Irwin has missed only one of the 32 institutes, last year when he was in Poland as a representative for cooperative extension.

Jay Rush, council president, said cooperatives are active in reinforcing education in many situations. Hal Doran said each individual was unique and represented persons

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Jay Hess of the Penn Manor FFA chapter showed the grand champion hog of the regional Lancaster County FFA Market Hog Show Wednesday.

In one of the largest market hog competitions yet fielded by the county FFA, with 98 entries, Hess's 226-pound hog took the top honor, displaying a long, lean profile.

Hess's hog was purchased by Tom Moyer for Hatfield Quality Meats for $2.45 per pound.

Hatfield was also the bulk buyer, setting a buy-back rate at 48 cents per pound for all hogs weighing from 210-260 pounds. Buyback was 46 cents for those weighing from 200 to 210 pounds Several were too small for Hatfield to

PERFORMANCE TOP DRESS

NEW

Advantage 20%

$224.06 Delivered
1 Ton Bulk

Advantage is a new line of high performance dairy feeds from Pennfield. It contains select sources of high quality blood meal and fish meal. Blood meal is an excellent by-pass source of the amino acid Lysine. Fish meal, an excellent source of by-pass protein, has also been shown to increase rumen bacterial protein synthesis — Rumen bugs work harder.

Combine these features with the steam crimped soybeans, steam flaked corn, balanced proteins and carbohydrates, plus vitamins and minerals and you have Pennfield's new Advantage Feed Line. Advantage Feeds are available in any protein % from 14% to 36%. Advantage may also be used in a Pennfield FR — Precision Formulated Ration — customized to meet the production requirements and forage being fed to your herd.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

JULY 13-19, 1992

FULL BUCK MOON, JULY 14.

ST. SWITHIN'S DAY, JULY 15

St Swithin was a beloved 9th-century bishop of Winchester who requested that he be buried in the churchyard, some say to be closer to the common people, whom he loved, some say so he could enjoy God's gift of rain for all eternity When he died in 862 A D his request was honored About 100 years later, it was deemed unseemly that so holy a man should rest in a common grave On July 15th, the attempt was made to enshrine his remains in his church However, legend says St Swithin caused torrential rains to fall for 40 days until the intended transfer was abandoned This is the source of the very old Scottish proverb

St. Swithin's day, if thou dost rain,
For forty days it will remain;
St. Swithin's day, if thou be fair,
For forty days 'twill rain na mair [no more].

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Prevent wicker furniture from yellowing by washing in a mild salt-water solution.

EARTHWISE

Helium-filled balloons are fun Amazingly balloons released in the midwest reach the ocean in just a few days When they land the faded, deflated balloons trailing strings look like jellyfish And they're deadly when eaten by turtles and whales If a balloon-release event is scheduled in your community inform organizers of the hazards to marine life If you purchase helium balloons for your children, help them hang on to them, and avoid crying children and dying wildlife

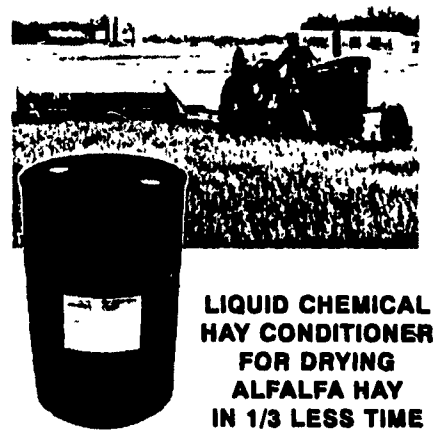
SWATHER'S Natural Choice / CHOICE

ALFALFA HAY CONDITIONER

NEW!



LIQUID CHEMICAL HAY CONDITIONER FOR DRYING ALFALFA HAY IN 1/3 LESS TIME

Alfalfa and other legume crops have a coating of wax. While this coating is a natural protection for the growing plant, it is an inhibitor to moisture loss in field curing and to feed utilization in the digestive system of ruminant animals. The presence of this coating of wax also makes the hay stem brittle and less palatable to livestock.

Swather's Choice "washes off" the outside waxy coating of alfalfa, allowing for the water inside the plant to evaporate more rapidly than in untreated hay. Swather's Choice is actually a soap that is safe for livestock consumption and won't affect palatability.

In studies at Michigan State University, hay treated with the ingredients in Swather's Choice had higher protein and lower fiber. In a further study at Utah State University, cows consumed 2.2 pounds more treated hay per day.

Unlike conventional granular drying agents, Swather's Choice is a liquid chemical hay conditioner. It is easily tank mixed with water and requires only fifteen gallons per acre in most applications, compared with the conventional products that are normally applied at 30 gallons per acre.

OPINION

Agencies Must Pay Compensation

The U.S. Supreme Court recently ordered that a state regulatory agency must pay compensation to a private landowner for its "regulatory taking" of his private land. The court ruling means that if land use is regulated for the public good, the public must bear the economic burden of restrictions, not the landowner alone.

This decision reaffirms that property rights are guaranteed by the Constitution. Dean Klechner said the ruling is "a clear-cut victory for all Americans, including America's farmers and ranchers.

This is especially important in the way the restrictive wetlands regulations are administered. In the future, regulators will have to be very careful about what they decide is in the public's interest. If they decide to restrict property rights with regulations, they'll need to figure out how to pay for it.

In the past, farmers have been subjected to government regulations that diminish the land's value and the ability of the farmer to use the land. In some cases, the value of the land has plummeted at the stroke of a regulator's pen, leaving the farmer without the resources necessary to earn a living and without the assets earned over a lifetime.

Owners receive compensation when their property is taken through eminent domain. Now compensation will be mandated when private property is taken through regulatory action. We applaud.

NOW IS THE TIME

By John Schwartz
Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Read "The Covenant Of the Wild"

Animal Rights continues to be a growing movement in the United States. Agriculture needs to develop a positive response to this movement.

The book, "The Covenant of the Wild" by Stephen Budiansky, offers a very good essay on how animals became domesticated and how agriculture evolved. The author used archaeological and behavioral research data to develop his thesis that animals chose to be domesticated.

Budiansky takes a look at nature and discusses man's role in nature and how the human-animal bond evolved over time. He was born in Boston and was graduated from Yale. Budiansky is currently a senior writer for U.S. News and World Report.

He became interested in the topic through his experiences as a small sheep flock owner near Frederick, Md.

This book will give you good insight to how agriculture evolved and how man and animals benefit from each other. Any major bookstore will special order this book for you.

To Be Prepared For An Emergency

An emergency may strike at any time. The difference between saving or losing a life could depend on how a phone call for help is made.

By your telephone, keep a list of emergency phone numbers. These numbers should be easy to read and visible. Beside the numbers should be written directions to your home. Include address, landmarks, mileage distances, and road names.

At the time of an emergency, be emotionally prepared to give the following information: 1. Type of emergency. 2. Number of victims involved. 3. Directions to the emergency. 4. Treatment that has already been provided.

Stay on the phone until the dispatcher discounts. Today's communication's equipment, if provided enough time, is able to identify where a call is being made. If the emergency site is isolated, have someone meet the emergency response personnel and direct them to the scene. Make sure your address is easily visible from the road.

When seconds count, your ability to call for help the correct way is crucial.

To Attend Animal Housing Expo

Are you thinking about building, remodeling, or expanding your animal housing facilities? Do you have questions about storing and handling feed and manure, animal traffic and handling, animal comfort, ventilation, or construction materials? Do you want to know who the providers are of various supplies and services, how to get your plans approved, and how to secure necessary funding?

If so, you will want to attend the Animal Housing Expo, sponsored by Penn State Cooperative Extension and local agricultural industries, on July 14 and 15 at the Lebanon County Fairgrounds. The program will be the same each day.

Speakers will be discussing site selection, remodel or build new, environmental requirements for dairy, swine and poultry, managing manure, regulations affecting animal housing, and what the banker expects. In addition, there will be exhibits and sample buildings to visit. Plan to attend and learn the latest in animal housing.

Feather Prof's Footnote: "It takes months to find a customer . . . seconds to lose one."

Editor:

The description of the new state budget as a Senate-amended House version is misleading. Make no mistake — there were three budgets before the Legislature this year: a House version, a Senate version, and the Governor's proposal. The budget that was signed was written by the Pennsylvania Senate.

The Senate version provided the lowest funding for the Department of Agriculture, while the Governor's proposal would have provided the most.

The Governor reluctantly signed the Senate budget so that the Commonwealth could operate without disruptions. He used his line-item veto power to scratch out $73 million in order to insure that essential services could continue and that a balanced budget is maintained during these difficult economic times.

There are many outstanding issues left to be resolved, and the Governor is asking the Legislature to immediately begin work on an acceptable supplemental spending bill. The Governor's line vetoes make it possilbe for the Legislature to correct the spending plan without raising taxes. I urge the members of the House and Senate to enact that supplemental budget when developed.

Sincerely,
BOYD E. WOLFF
Secretary of Agriculture

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

I AND NONE ELSE
July 12, 1992

Background Scripture:
Zephaniah 1 through 2.
Devotional Reading:
Proverbs 14:26-35.

Unless you are partial to cosmic-size "destruction derbys," the picture that the prophet Zephaniah draws is not a pretty one. The whole book bearing his name is based upon his expectation of the terrible "day of the Lord" which, with the exception of a small remnant, will bring universal destruction: "I will utterly sweep away everything from the face of the earth," says the Lord..." I will cut off mankind from the face of the earth'"(1:2,3)

There are lots of doom-laden prophecies in the Old Testament, but none more sweeping and devastating than these by Zephaniah: "In the fire of his jealous wrath, all the earth shall be consumed; for a full, yea sudden end he will make of all the inhabitants of the earth"(1:18b).

WORDS OF DOOM

What was behind these words of doom? Zephaniah spells out God's judgment upon the morality of all people in general and the people of Judiah in particular. There is a long catalog of private and corporate sin: the adulteration of devotion to God, the adoption of pagan ways, rampant materialism and greed, and galloping moral decay. Whenever people flaunt their evil in the face of God, the potential for the Day of the Lord grows stronger.

At the hear of Zephaniah's condemnation, however, is the underlying arrogance that characterizes many of the people. This is not just a matter of the corrupt things they did, but of the sinful persons they became. The key to all of this is a disastrous pride. Some of these people assume that their financial wealth will exempt them from God's judgment. But God says through Zephaniah: "Neither their silver nor their gold shall be able to deliver them on the day of the wrath of the Lord"(1:18)

What God is looking for is true humility, not the arrogance he finds at every level of society. That arrogrance finds is ultimate expression in these words: This is the exultant city that dwelt secure, that said to himself, "I am and there is none else"(2:15). You may have to read that a few times to grasp its meaning. It is the ultimate of ego gone rampant. It is simply another way of saying: In this world there is only one who counts — Me.

WHO IS SECURE?

Lots of people today believe that and, to the best of their ability, live it out in their lives. Not only individuals, but groups can exhibit this arrogance. Zephaniah mentions a whole city: "That is the exultant city, that dwelt secure.." (2:15). There will be nothing over which to exult on the Day of the Lord and no one should be so presumptuous as to feel "secure."

God also despises the depreciating remarks that are meant to undermine his reign among people. "I have heard the taunts of Moab and the revilings of the Ammonites, how they have taunted my people and made boasts against their territory" (2:8). Even the people of Judah have made disparaging remarks about God — "those who say in their hearts, "The Lord will not do good, nor will he do ill" (1:12b). These people of Judah think of God as one who either does not care or who is impotent to do anything.

Actually, there are lots of us today who, although nominally Christian, take pretty much the same attitude. We do not deny the reality of God — in fact, we might be scandalized if anyone should do so — but we speak or act as if God were of no consequence in this world, as if sin will forever go unpunished and without consequence. That is truly the ultimate blasphemy. Better to deny God than to underestimate Him — as if "I am and there is none else."

Higher quality for improved protection.

Ag ONE lubricants (engine oils, fluids, grease) and filters provide superior performance.

For instance, Ag ONE Supreme engine oil surpasses the Cummins NTC 400 oil consumption and cleanliness performance test by double the duration required. In the alkaline property (TBN) tests, Ag ONE Supreme also tested superior. It also far surpasses the minimums in wear protection and viscosity testing.

And Ag ONE Supreme is one example of the many superior lubricants and filters competitively priced from your White-New Idea dealer. See them for all your parts and supplies.

AJCC Meets, Elects Officers

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — More than 300 Jersey breeders and guests gathered in Lansing, Michigan, to participate in The American Jersey Cattle Club's annual meeting and related events held from June 24 through June 27.

During the annual meeting, Ray Schooley, Niangua, Mo., was elected to succeed Harold Wright, White River Junction, Vt., as president. Robert Howard, Tillamook, Ore., and James Chaney, Bowling Green, Ky., were elected to the board of directors. Three directors were re-elected to the board, including: Neal Schirm, Canal Winchester, Ohio; Michael Riggs, Danville, Ind.; and D.L. Strandberg Alma Center, Wis.

Dr. John Wilk, professor of animal science at North Carolina State University and director of the Randleigh Foundation Research Program, was the featured speaker at the annual meeting. Dr. Wilk addressed the issues and challenges facing the Jersey breed saying, "The Jersey breed is changing. Production continues to increase and the outlook for the future is improving. Herd averages of 20,000 pounds once seemed unreachable. Now two herds have exceeded that level and several others are nearing it. These breeders deserve the special recognition that goes with these accomplishments. More herds are producting at high levels than ever before and consequently, the image of the Jersey cow is changing. This image of higher production along with the increasing emphasis on protein in the marketplace is making the Jersey more appealing to commercial dairymen."

He continued, "The important point is that the Jersey cow is responding to the challenge of commercial conditions and can compete economically with the competition. To improve this competitive position, sound selection programs along with proper nutrition, and modern management guides must be available and used to plan production for expected milk markets."

Nearing the end of his speech, Wilk said, "The U.S. Jersey is having a profound influence on Jerseys in other countries around the world. The top Jersey bulls in the U.S. are being used in many other countries and their daughters are performing especially well under a variety of conditions. Several U.S. bulls have proofs in other countries and they rank among the top bulls in those countries. We need to realize that decisions made concerning Jerseys in the U.S. have worldwide implications."

The AJCC annual meeting followed a breakfast where seven awards were presented to the 1992 AJCC Young Jersey Dairymen. Those receiving the award included: David Betz, Jefferson, N.Y.; Joel and Gail Black, Saluda, S.C.; Steven and Jeffery Holmes, Alstead, N.H.; Glenn Kenny Family, Enon Valley, Penna.; Roger and Kim Owens, Frederic, Wis.; Kirk and Julie Traver, Williamston, Mich.; and Stanley K. Weldy, Middle Point, Ohio.

The Young Jersey Dairyman recipients joined the 1992 Master Breeder, Phil Fanelli, from Hilmar, Calif., and the 1992 Distinguished Serviceman, Dick Riggs, from Evansville, Ind., who had been recognized at the Jersey Breeders' Banquet the previous evening. Owners of the Leading Living Lifetime Production winners and President's Trophy winner were also recognized during the breakfast.

The AJCC annual meeting was held in conjunction with four days of events hosted by the Michigan Jersey Cattle Club. Tours of area Jersey farms included: Lake and Piepkow Farms, Olivet, Mich.; Singlpine Dairy, Williamston; and Hapalson Jersey Farm, Fowlerville.

From the left, Glenn, Nathan, Lisa, and Joshua Kenny, of Enon Valley, receive the 1992 Young Jersey Dairyman award during the national Jersey convention.

The top selling calf of the national Jersey calf sale was purchased for $10,000. From the left, Jay Booth is the consignor, Bob Bishop the buyer. Also shown are Tom Piepkons at the halter, Jerry Graves, representing the contending bidder, Sail-On Jerseys, Daisy Bishop, also a buyer. In the auctioneer box is Merlin Woodruff.

$10,000 Top Bid At National Jersey Sale

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — The consignments at this year's National Heifer Sale proved to be among the elite Jersey heifers in the nation.

The June 26 sale was held in conjunction with the annual meetings of The American Jersey Cattle Club and National All-Jersey Inc., in Lansing, Michigan. Part of the proceeds from the annual sale are used to support AJCC youth programs.

The 44 heifers selling averaged $2,537.50 with the top price of $10,000 paid for the consignment of Clifton L. and Laura Booth, Buhl, Idaho.

NAJ Says Dairy Outlook Good

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — Lansing, Michigan, was the site of the 34th annual meeting of National All-Jersey Inc. (NAJ), a national milk marketing organization that assists dairy producers in marketing their milk. More than 300 Jersey breeders and guests from across the nation and several foreign countries attended the June 26 annual meeting and related functions.

National All-Jersey Inc. is actively involved in the nationwide promotion of multiple component pricing (MCP) and higher minimum standards for fluid milk.

NAJ President Richard Clauss, Hilmar, Calif., reported, "It is amazing how quickly things change in the dairy industry. It was only a year ago when we met in Maryland that milk prices had dropped to the same level they had been in the late seventies.

"Today, things have changed. Milk prices are about $1.50 per hundredweight higher than a year ago and are still increasing. Consumption of dairy products is up 1.8 percent this year and milk production is declining. This is good news for all us!"

More good news came when NAJ General Manager Calvin Covington reported the approximately 73 percent of the nation's milk supply is priced or eligible to be priced under multiple component pricing.

During the meetings, a sense of urgency prevailed to incorporate multiple component pricing as the pricing system for regulated milk nationwide. Covington attributes the urgency to the decline of milk's fat value and the increase of milk's skim portion.

"Such a shift in milk's value, as most of you know, not only increases the inequity in milk pricing but fails to give all milk producers the proper economic incentives. The future profitability of Jersey breeders and the entire U.S. dairy industry is at stake unless this can be corrected."

From the left, Martin Watson, of Troy, receives the 1991 President's Trophy from Harold Wright, president of the American Jersey Cattle Club.

Covington continued, "NAJ has made implementation of MCP in all government regulated pricing plans its number one priority. This is the most feasible way to overcome inequity in milk pricing to give all dairy farmers the proper economic incentives."

Covington said significant progress has been made toward equity in milk pricing. However, the continuing shift in milk's value from fat to skim makes the need for multiple componenet pricing more urgent and critical than ever before.

Turning his attention to the future, Covington said, "The primary goal of NAJ is the implementation of MCP in all federal orders by the year 2000. To some this may seem impossible in just the next seven years. But, we are confident it will be accomplished."

In his report to the membership, Executive Secretary Maurice Core echoed Covington's statements saying the present skim-butterfat milk pricing system is completely illogical.

"When the price of fat is reduced the value for skim is increased. This system encourages dairymen to produce more 'white water' with little or no regard for non-fat solids."

During NAJ's annual meeting, Ted Luther, Mount Ulla, N.C., was re-elected to serve a third four-year term to the NAJ Board of Directors. During the board's re-organizational meeting following the annual meeting, Richard Clauss, Hilmar, Calif., was re-elected president and Richard Riggs, Evansville, Ind., was re-elected finance chairman.

buy and were purchased by others.

Hatfield has been bulk buying and offering to purchase hogs at market rate from those who successfully bid on a youth's hog, but have no intentions of using the animal.

Taking the reserve champion title with his 260-pound market hog was Chad Kurtz, of Ephrata. Kurtz's hog was purchased for Farm Credit by Brian Detwiler, a loan officer, for $1.60 per pound.

Also, just as those who sell swine commercially, federal checkoff money is collected from the earnings of the youth. That money is used to fund national and local pork promotion.

Deb Seibert, chairman of the hog show and an agriculture teacher at Manheim Central High School, said it was the third year the show has been held at the Manheim Farm Show grounds and turnout was strong with more than 15 buyers showing. The show had been held at the Lancaster County Stockyards and was moved to Manheim for easier access.

Seibert said she ascribed several factors to participation being up to 98.

"We haven't had that in 10 years," she said of the number of youth showing. There are a lot of new members this year and its a project where there's not a lot of time and investment, but a lot of education," she said.

The show was judged by Rodney Gilbert, livestock herdman at Delaware Valley College.

Auctioneering was John Stauffer, who volunteered his efforts for the youth development program.

NCGA, Ethanol Tax Credit Positive

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) announced the proposal legislation on proportional excise tax exemption for ethanol blends is positive news for corn growers. However, ethanol's role in the reformulated gasoline program (RFG) is still in jeopardy.

"The tax exemption in no way resolves or dissipates the need for EPA to include ethanol in the RFG program," said Tim Trotter, NCGA president and a Coal City, Ill. corn farmer. "NCGA and the ethanol industry sincerely appreciate the support of Congress in establishing the new exemption, but corn growers must not lose site of the implications for agriculture and the U.S. economy if ethanol is locked out of RFG."

The tax exemption bill, introduced by Sen. Tom Daschle (D-SD), was approved by the Senate Finance Committee on June 16 and now proceeds to the full Senate. The new incentive will allow gasoline marketers who blend ethanol to receive the excise tax exemption for blends less than 10 percent. Currently, blends less than 10 percent only qualify for the blenders tax credit.

"This new incentive will allow much greater flexibility among marketers and blenders to meet the requirements of the Clean Air Act," Trotter said.

Current bill language: 10% blend = 3.5% wt. oxygen, with 5.4 cent tax credit; 7.7% blend = 2.7% wt. oxygen, with 4.1 cent tax credit; 5.7% blend = 2% wt. oxygen, with 3.2 cent tax credit.

"Some have confused the RFG program issue with the new tax legislation," Trotter said. "We want to emphasize without participation in the RFG program farmers could have a $7.54 per planted acre lower return. NCGA will continue to work with EPA to ensure ethanol's rightful role in RFG.

Dunn Not Finished Leading County

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEW RINGGOLD (Schuylkill Co.) — James Dunn is a busy young man.

After climbing down a hay elevator, sweated and dusty from stacking hay bales, he laughed and said, "Yes, I'm always done (Dunn), but never finished."

And neither is his herd of grade and registered Holsteins.

A few years ago, within a short time after getting into the dairy production business, the Dunn herd took over the lead in the county Dairy Herd Improvement Association production standings. He's kept the standing and his cows' production has continued to climb.

In fact, he may well have the cow which will lead the state this year in individual lactation production — a 3-year-old Holstein which is projected at more than 40,000 pounds of milk on 305 days. He shook his head and said that she may go closer to 50,000 if she continues on a 365-day lactation.

And she wasn't the only cow in the herd projected that high. He has a few other cows which have been regular producers of 30,000 pounds and more.

Dunn said he isn't really sure why he's getting such good results. "We had several tours go through and guys say, 'You're not doing anything differently,'" he said. "I don't know exactly why they've (the cows) been doing so well."

He feeds TMR and hay several times a day. The waterers are cleaned regularly. An ultraviolet water filter was installed to kill any bacteria in the water supply and the cows seem to drink often, which is a key to good production.

But, it's only one of many keys for which Dunn said he follows a regular maintenance schedule.

Though no expert has examined the Dunn farm to be able to make an educated guess as to how and why the cows are preforming so well, to the casual observer it seems a combination of paying attention to detail, staying abreast of research developments and reports of success, and perhaps mostly, consistency with cow care.

The bedding is always better than adequate, the waterers are cleaned on a regular maintenance schedule, the forages are tested once a month and when Dunn suspects a change in forage. Dunn does these things not on a trial basis, and not occassionally, but every time.

"I'd say nutrition is first in priority. Second is cow comfort," Dunn said, adding that both areas of concern demand attention to detail and a professional attitude.

It seems to be paying off.

"I was happy to get 20,000 pounds," Dunn said, "but then it kept going up."

In fact, he finished 1991 with a rolling herd average (RHA) of 25,034 pounds of milk, 826 pounds of fat and 802 pounds of protein. The milk production is now averaging about 26,000 pounds.

"I had trouble with fat, but now it's up to about 900 (pound average)," he said, adding that the reason for a relatively depressed butterfat average continues to evade him, but now it's almost a moot point.

Unbelievably, his herd posted a rolling herd average with protein running about 100 pounds above butterfat. That happened for about a half a year.

At request, Pennsylvania DHIA checked the records for possible errors, since the numbers for butter and fat appeared switched.

However, the numbers were correct. Dunn had one of the few, if not the only herd in the state to average higher protein production than fat production. But he doesn't know how he did it.

However, it changed to reflect the normal trend — higher butterfat average and a lower protein average.

"Once protein went over 800 (pounds), it tickled me. It's not like I tried any new mineral or anything."

If he went to milking three time a day, the production could reasonably be expected to increase a little, but that's not necessary and Dunn doesn't have the time to milk cows all day long.

James is the dairyman in the family business, a partnership between father and sons, but there are many other hats he has to wear.

The main business started with James's grandfather who bought orchard land and raised and marketed fruits and vegetables for years. James' father took that over and expanded and as James came of age, his father and brother agreed that adding dairy production to the family business would further add to its stability because of the diversification.

"I think that's what makes it work, diversification," Dunn said. "If it wouldn't be for the fruit business, I wouldn't be where I'm at," he said. He started at a farm without a good silo, feeding cows off of silage piles, sometimes questionable quality hay. But now he feeds quality feed (21 percent protein hay on his last cutting), has good equipment and put up a silo.

The most recent addition to the barn is an improved ventilation system. His father purchased a lot of non-typical fans for use in the barn. It raised the electric bill considerably, but also moves air well.

James said he calculated that it would take an increase of 2 pounds of milk per cow to pay for the increased electricity. The herd has been averaging about a 200-pound-per month increase.

Low milk prices and the investments in land and buildings make the dairy aspect of the family operation not as profitable as it could be, but eventually it should come to represent one of the stronger aspects of the multiple commodities family business.

James doesn't have the privilege of concentrating only on his cows. He has other duties in the partnership too, such as pruning apple and peach trees — they switched to a practice of pruning in late spring and early summer, rather than the fall, so that more energy goes into fruit production rather than into new growth.

He said that removing small suckers from the trunk and branches is easier in June and it also allows more air to circulate through the tree and more sunlight to hit the fruit, aiding in its maturation.

There's also helping with the family retail market sales which keeps James busy. The Dunn family has several small market locations and almost every family member plays a role in keeping them running smoothly.

They make cider in the fall, sell vegetables, raise most of the bull calves as steer and raise their own feed crops.

With all the work, he doesn't have much time for attempting too many new things.

But, although he's been in business a relatively short time, Dunn is also working to get his herd to be completely registered.

When he started, he bought cows and heifers from different sources, but the main supplier was a Lancaster herd, from which Dunn bought 21 cows. Most of his cows were grade, but good producers. The registered animals he purchased are the ones he is following and developing.

With those, he uses the best bulls he can, taking advantage of a mating selection program offered by his artificial insemination service company. He said its turns out that the sires he's been using are almost all among the top 100 for index.

Also, he's been flushing and using the grade cows to carry embryos of the registered cows. Eventually, he wants to start marketing genetics.

Not everything has gone his way. Last year he lost three cows which had been making 30,000 pound lactations. "That hurts," he said. "We never found out why they died."

He said the herd gets its regular health checkups and they are all vaccinated against the usuall bovine diseases.

He said that the bottom line is a consistency in himself, which gives him a better chance of consistency in the animals and in the milk tank.

James Dunn wipes off teats after treating with an iodine solution before milking. He also treats after milking. He said reducing somatic cell count and maintaining healthy udders is reason enough for the practice.

James Dunn feeds hay, a mixutre of Reeds Canary Grass and Timothy, to his Holsteins. They get two servings of the grass hay and two servings of second cutting alfalfa plus three servings of TMR every day.

DHIA Secretary Wears Centre Co. Dairy Princess Crown

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

PLEASANT GAP (Centre Co.) — Seven years ago Amy Nyman was alternate dairy princess for Centre County. Now, at 23 years of age, Amy Nyman wears the dairy princess crown for the same county.

From her perspective, the past seven years have enabled her to gain much more knowledge about the dairy industry. In return, she believes that she is a better spokesperson for the dairy industry.

Much of this knowledge was gained from her work experience as a Dairy Herd Improvement Association (DHIA) secretary at State College.

Although she grew up on her parents' 50-acre farm in Howard, the daughter of Claude and Ruth Nyman knew all about milking cows, but little about the dairy industry.

"Seven years ago, I saw my dairy princess duties primarily as a neat way to get out of barn work," Amy said. "Now that I'm older, I see there is much more to the dairy industry than milking cows."

One point that Amy would like to stress to consumers is the quality assurance standards that a farmer must follow to assure the consumer gets a top quality product.

She said, "These standards must be followed before the farmer feeds his cow until the milk leaves his farm."

Another point that Amy intends to stress is to have the consumer realize there is dairy product for everyone including the lactose intolerant and the diet-conscious individual.

Amy graduated from Bald Eagle High School in 1986. She worked for the Centre County government until she became a secretary for DHIA about 20 months ago when she moved from her parents' home to State College.

"I really enjoy working in agriculture, and I am delighted to be working for the dairy industry," she said.

As the oldest in the family, Amy has two brothers, 21 and 17; and a sister, 18. For relaxation, three or four nights a week, Amy dresses in cowboy boots and a hat to join a group for country-western dancing.

Amy was crowned on May 29, at the Logan Grange Hall in Pleasant Gap by former Centre County Dairy Princess Jennifer Daily.

Nine dairy maids, from 5 to 15 years of age, will assist Amy in dairy promotion.

"The dairy farmer needs everyone's support. I feel honored to represent the dairy industry in Centre County and hope to use my knowledge and experience in order to have a super year of promotion," Amy said. "I believe that I can make a difference if I put my all into milk promotion."

Cherry Crop Down

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania's 1992 tart cherry production is forecast at 5 million pounds, 57 percent less than last year's production of 11.5 million pounds, according to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service.

Last summer's drought and spring frost damage appear to be the main contributors of the crop reduction. Harvest should have begun about July 4, nine days later than last year.

Sweet cherry production is forecast at 800 tons, 27 percent less than 1991's crop of 1,100 tons. Adverse weather conditions last summer and this spring weakened the trees and lowered the number of blooms. Harvest is 11 days behind last year, beginning around June 24.

U.S. tart production for 1992 is forecast at 261 million pounds, up 37 percent from last year and 25 percent more than 1990. In Michigan, the largest producing state, the expected harvest is 185 million pounds, an increase of 68 percent over last year's production, and 16 percent above 1990.

The U.S. sweet cherry crop is forecast at 192,900 tons, 27 percent more than last year and 23 percent more than 1990.

Records Break At National Guernsey Convention

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — The American Guernsey Association (AGA) held its national convention and annual meeting June 26 to 29 in Pewaukee, Wisconsin. "Guernseys and You in '92" was the theme for the four day event.

ASCS Takes Comments

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Milk producers and other interested people are invited to comment on USDA's proposal prohibiting excessive manufacturing allowances in state marketing orders for milk.

Under the proposal, states using formulas to price milk used to produce butter, nonfat dry milk or cheese, would not use a manufacturing allowance greater than those used in the federal price support program.

Donald Unangst, state executive director for the Pennsylvania State Office of the ASCS, said the current price support program allowances are $1.22 per hundredweight for milk made in butter and nonfat dry milk and $1.37 for milk made into cheese.

Written comments on state milk marketing orders must be received no later than July 20, by: Charles Shaw, Director, Dairy Analysis Division, ASCS-USDA, P.O. Box 2415, Washington, D.C. 20013.

MORE ON GRAZING ALFALFA

I have just returned from the bi-annual meeting of the North American Alfalfa Improvement Conference held in Atlanta, GA. And as you might expect, it gave me the opportunity to see first hand some of the most recent research on grazing alfalfa, especially with the new Georgia developed variety, Alfagraze. In this month's column I'd like to share some of my observations with you.

But first, let's review the two most widely expressed concerns when grazing alfalfa. The biggest concern appears to be the fear of bloat. And, alfalfa does have bloat potential, especially in late winter and early spring. But, as stated by researchers and farmers alike, this danger can be virtually eliminated by having poloxolene blocks available to grazing animals. In fact I was again assured by those grazing alfalfa in the upper south that to date they've had no serious bloat problems with grazing animals on alfalfa, assuming they followed those sound practical management practices developed to prevent the problem. These include the following:

- Never turn hungry cattle onto a lush growth of alfalfa. Ease them onto the alfalfa by pre-filling with grass or other dry hay allowing short periods of grazing until they get used to the crop.
- Be sure to use proven bloat preventatives such as poloxolene during the entire grazing season.

The second concern is that grazing will weaken and destroy the alfalfa stand in a short time. Again we know that continuous heavy grazing pressure will reduce or eliminate alfalfa stands, especially of some of our hay type varieties. But we also know that with those varieties a good system of rotational grazing to allow a rest period of three to four weeks between grazings, along with adequate fertility and other good management, will usually result in relatively good stands after several years of grazing. And with the newer, relatively inexpensive fencing and watering systems now available intensive pasture systems are much more realistic.

But let's talk more specifically about the variety Alfagraze developed by Dr. Joe Bouton, Alfalfa breeder at the University of Georgia. For me, his grazing trials with alfalfa at the University of Georgia's Central Branch Station were impressive. I've been involved directly or indirectly with alfalfa grazing research and with producers' grazing experiences with alfalfa for over 40 years. But I've not seen anything more clear-cut than the differences in stand persistence after several years of grazing between Alfagraze and the other improved varieties. This was especially apparent under the more continuous type grazing where stands of Alfagraze were much superior to other varieties. One producer told me this variety promises to be a real breakthrough for dairy and beef producers in the south. It also appears that this variety or similar other varieties now being developed hold the same promise for dairy cows and sheep, as well as beef, in other areas of the U.S.

To me there is little doubt that as more and more livestock farmers return to pasture as an important part of their forage system, well-managed alfalfa or alfalfa-grass mixtures offer the greatest potential for high animal performance for dairy, beef and sheep. And Alfagraze or similar varieties as they come along promise to make that potential a reality. As stated by Georgia scientists Joe Bouton and Carl Hoveland, and supported by researchers in Virginia, Kentucky and other states, well-managed alfalfa pastures offer the potential of high animal performance and more profitability for both dairy and growing beef animals, as well as sheep and horses, over a much longer season of the year than cool season grasses alone. It would be most unfortunate if livestock producers fail to take advantage of this potential.

Many forage workers feel the verdict is still out on Alfagraze in the north. Its persistence here is still not certain, but it has a dormancy similar to Vernal and it has survived winter conditions in the upper-Midwest. Disease-wise it has resistance to Fusarium wilt and moderate resistance to anthracnose and bacterial wilt. But it has very low resistance to Phytophthora root rot and its resistance to Verticillium wilt is unknown but probably very low.

Nevertheless, researchers and farmers alike in the major alfalfa growing states are giving it a good look. You may wish to give it a try too.

Gloucester 4-H Fair Set

CLAYTON, NJ — On July 23, 24 & 25 the Gloucester County 4-H Fairgrounds in Mullica Hill will become a beehive of activity. Route #77 will swarm with a steady stream of vehicles bringing 4-H'ers and their exhibits to show off for the three days of the annual Gloucester County 4-H Fair.

The animal barns will burst with rabbits, horses, pigs, goats, steers and cow, while the exhibit barn will show visitors 4-H woodworking, needlework, quilts, crafts, vegetables and flowers. Exhibiting marks the culmination of a full year of work for 800 4-H members.

A full schedule of events over the three days will provide something for any age group. The 1992 Fair boasts an exciting schedule of events. Teams of draft horses will pull a huge sled. Costumed dogs will compete in their own show. Kids can see and touch baby animals in a special display area while parents can view and admire classic cars. Kids under four will compete in a Tractor Pull.

A Gloucester County Key Ambassador will be named on Thursday evening following a day including horse, swine, sheep and dairy goat shows. Thursday evening will also feature a 4-H Drum and Bugle Corps, The Southern Knights.

Friday's annual shows will include dairy, rabbit and horse. Doc Holliday's Country & Western Band will provide evening entertainment.

Saturday is "Kids Day" including a Fun Carnival, Baby Parade, Diaper Derby, Turtle Race abd Frog Jumping Contest, as well as the Parade of Champions.

For the hungry, a trip to the Fair must include dinner — served from 4:00 - 8:00 PM. Thursday: Clams, shrimp & ribs; Friday and Saturday: Chicken barbeque; $7.00 for adults and $4.00 for children.

four-day national convention.

In what may be one of the most significant acts, the delegates to the convention also approved creating a second national herd book which would allow for the registration of grade Holsteins. It would allow recognition of animals who have been bred by animals outside the breed association's recognized purebreed pedigree.

The move was seen as beneficial for two reasons: it would allow for some grade animals to eventually be recognized for the traits they carry; and it would also serve as a bank for registration of Holsteins whose lineage falls outside of the United States.

Until the second book becomes active, those who seek to use genetics supplied by the rest of the world herd are not permitted to register the animals as purebred, even though the pedigree of the imported strains is recognized in its home country.

Also announced during the convention, the restructuring of the national association's staff has been completed to reduce operating costs. And programs instituted since last year have resulted in large member savings, while reducing income to the organization.

The election of Howard was significant, however, because it represents a basic difference in philosophy and vision toward the breed organization and its role in guiding the development of the breed.

In the June issue of Holstein World, the national organization's official publication, the opinions of the candidates were printed. Howard said he disagreed with some of the views expressed.

"As much as a year or so ago, people had urged me to run for this position because John Cope was to go out," Howard said Thursday. Cope, from Grantham, was one of four directors whose terms expired.

"I gave it some thought, and decided I would make myself available," Howard said. "Then, in February, in our state convention . . . two of us expressed interest in running. The vote was a tie and the state president broke the tie.

"At the time, I felt it best to step aside, even though he (Burket) made his intention clear that he was going to run even without the endorsement.

"Then when the (Holstein) World came out with interviews of candidates and positions, I began getting phone calls from people in and out of Pennsylvania. People were concerned about the views expressed and urged me to reconsider. I really didn't think I would," Howard said.

According to the 39-year-old dairyman, he decided to go out to the national convention, as he has planned, and not worry about the directorship.

"Out there people were puting more and more pressure on me and I guess I have a significant difference in philosophy as to the future direction of our association," Howard said.

"I felt that the people needed to choose. With only four candidates (for four positions), there was no choice. So I thought I should run.

"It may not have been the easiest thing for me to do, but I felt it was the right thing to do," Howard said.

Howard, who operates Howcrest Holsteins with his wife Susan, milks about 45 registered Holsteins with rolling herd production at 24,000 pounds of milk and 900 pounds of fat. His herd has a BAA of 107.2 percent.

A Penn State University dairy science graduate, Howard has been active in the state association, receiving honors for the last three years and being named Outstanding Young Holstein Breeder both in the state and nationally in 1990.

During the convention, after president Carl Butler introduced the existing candidates, he opened the floor to anyone else interested in seeking a seat. That's when Howard spoke up.

After introducing himself, Howard talked about the differences between his views and other views.

"I said I'm 39 years old and, because the Holstein business is the center of my life for now and years to come, I have an intense interest in the direction and future of the breed.

"After reading the candidate interviews in the June World, and also at the strong urging of many respected members from both within Pennsylvania and around the country, I have decided to reconsider my candidacy for director," he told the delegates.

"I believe I can bring to the board the representation of a large and very important segment of our membership — that is, the active family farmer with his neck on the line who has a family to raise and a debt load to service and still milks the cows everyday," Howard said.

Then he talked about the need for communication between directors and members, and his views about the association, both its cows and people.

About cows, Howard said, "I think we need to continually monitor our genetic programs to be sure we are developing cows that are truly the most profitable milk producers, not only in one lactation, but in her lifetime."

And as far as people, "I think we need to remember that the association is not in Brattleboro (Vermont). It's in the farms of the members who elected us delegates, who, as we meet today, are back home using the services of this association and whose business will be affected by the decisions we make."

John said the response to his positions were well received.

He also said that being an active family farmer will not interfere with his duties as director.

"When we started farming, we made a commitment that we won't be tied to cows, and I think we demonstrated that we can make time. We do have very good help available locally. We feel very comfortable" with the people who operate the farm when the Howards decide they need to get away from the farm, he said.

In fact, the last two years, Howard and his wife and their three children have driven to the national convention, taking two weeks off of the farm each year.

He said also, that with the per diem that the association now pays directors to compensate for some of the cost of serving the association, he would better be able to afford leaving the farm in capable hands.

However, the bottom line, Howard said, is not that he is against any specific person holding office, but that he felt compelled to further what he and others see as the direction of the association.

Basically, the difference in opinion is that some breeders are

Vitamin E Helps Dairy Cows

PARSIPPANY, N.J. — A large body of evidence points to the fact that vitamin E supplementation can moderate the effects of specific diseases in dairy cattle according to an animal nutrition corporation.

Some of the most recent research suggests levels of vitamin E beyond those needed for normal growth and reproduction may actually enhance bovine immune systems.

"Vitamin E in Animal Nutrition and Management," a new reference manual published by BASF Animal Nutrition, summarizes the state of current knowledge on the topic.

Vitamin E is essential for the integrity and optimum function of reproductive, muscular, circulatory and immune systems, said Dr. Michael Coelho, BASF nutritionist and technical service manager.

Recent studies have focused on the possible enhancement of animal immune systems by feeding vitamin E in amounts greater than those required for normal growth and reproduction. Most reports indicate that vitamin E alone or in combination with selenium enhances immunity in a variety of species, Coelho said.

There is growing evidence that supplemental vitamin E can help control mastitis and other diseases in dairy cattle he said.

In a 1984 study supervised by K. Larry Smith of Ohio State University, first-lactation heifers supplemented with vitamin E and selenium showed significantly fewer quarters infected at calving, reduced prevalence of infection throughout lactation, fewer cases of clinical mastitics, infections of shorter duration and lower somatic cell counts when compared to unsupplemented heifers.

In 1989, Smith, J.S. Hogan and Ohio State co-workers studied the incidence and causes of mastitis in nine well-managed dairy herds for one year.

"The major mastitis problem in these herds was clinical mastitis, and the overall incidence was approximately one new clinical case per two cow lactations," Smith wrote.

Diets of dry cows and the rations fed to the top-producing third of the lactating cows were analyzed three different times during the year for vitamin E and selenium. It was found that the lower the level of vitamin E in the cows' diets, the higher the incidence of clinical mastitis. The same correlation existed between mastitis incidence and levels of selenium in the cows' blood.

Serious mastitis control begins with a good program of post-milking teat-end disinfection, total dry cow therapy and a clean, dry environment for the cows, Smith said. But he added, "The degree of success of these hygienic measures may to some degree depend on the resistance of the herd to disease."

Holstein cows need 1,000 International Units (IU) of vitamin E per cow during the dry period and lactation, the Ohio State scientist said. "The exact supplemental amount of vitamin E will depend on the quality and amount of forage being fed."

Vitamin E occurs naturally in a wide variety of feedstuffs, but current feedstuff preservation practices may cause serious reductions in vitamin E levels in livestock rations.

"Rations containing high-moisture grain may require more vitamin E supplementation than rations containing dried grain," Coelho said. "A number of factors must be considered, such as the initial vitamin E level of the feedstuff and any additional processing it has undergone.

"The discovery of vitamins is relatively recent," said Coelho. "In fact, vitamin E was not identified as a dietary factor until 1922. But just as vitamin E is now recognized as an indispensable part of a balanced human diet, research confirms its importance for animal health and reproduction."

Egg Production Rises

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Egg production in Pennsylvania during May 1992 totaled 464 million eggs, up 8 percent from the 429 million eggs produced in May 1991, according to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service.

The total number of layers on hand averaged 19.8 million during the month, 6 percent more than May 1991. Production per 100 layers was 2,340 eggs, up from the 2,303 eggs produced during the previous May.

Egg production during the March through May 1992 quarter totaled 1,372 billion eggs, up 8 percent from the same quarter in 1991. The average number of layers on hand for the three month period was 19.6 million, compared with 18.5 million during the same quarter last year.

Egg-type hatch totaled 4.6 million chicks during May 1992, 7 percent less than in May 1991. Cumulative egg-type hatch for January through May, at 20.2 million, was 8 percent less than the corresponding period in 1991. Broiler-type hatch totaled 10.7 million during May 1992, down 6 percent from the previous year May. Aggregate broiler-type hatch for January-May 1992 was 53.4 million, down 1 percent from the previous year.

United States' egg production totaled 17.7 billion eggs during the March through May quarter, up 2 percent from the corresponding quarter a year ago. All layers in the U.S. on June 1, 1992 totaled 275 million, compared with 272 million a year ago. Rate of lay per day on June 1, 1992 averaged 68.6 eggs per 100 layers, compared with 68.7 for June 1, 1991.

Egg-type chicks hatched during May totaled 38.3 million, 1 percent above the May 1991 total. Broiler-type hatch, at 596 million, was 2 percent above May last year. The 28.6 million poults placed in the United States during May were 4 percent below the placements during the same month a year ago.

Vegie Crops Down

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Processors in Pennsylvania have contracted 5,600 acres of snap beans in 1992, 1,000 acres below the 6,600 acres contracted in 1991, according to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service.

Sweet corn processors have contracted 2,000 acres, down 39 percent from the 3,300 contracted in 1991. Tomato processors have contracted 1,200 acres, down 20 percent from the 1,500 contracted in 1991.

United States' processors have contracted 1.37 million acres of vegetables in 1992 for the nation's four major vegetable crops (snap beans, sweet corn, green peas, and tomatoes). This is down 10 percent from 1991 and 9 percent below 1990.

U.S. snap bean processors have contracted 205,620 acres, down 12 percent from last year. Sweet corn processors have contracted 535,300 acres, down 5 percent from the previous year. Tomato processors have contracted 273,820 acres in 1992, a 24 percent decline from last year. Green pea processors have contracted 352,900 acres, down 1 percent from 1991.

4-H'ers Speak Out In Cumberland County

BETH WHITMAN PITZER
Cumberland Co.
Correspondent

MECHANICSBURG (Cumberland Co.) — Eighteen youth in Cumberland County participated in 4-H Speak-Out Night on Thursday, June 25, at Cumberland Valley High School. Some spoke about issues close to their hearts, others researched new topics to demonstrate public speaking and demonstration skills. Anthony Betonte, 4-H coordinator in Cumberland County, said, "The kids are encouraged to take the step into public speaking with confidence,in the 4-H way."

Michelle Cornman, a member of the Conodoguinet Sheep Club, spoke about "Animal Rights versus Animal Welfare". Michelle informed the audience that more than 7,000 animal rights and animal welfare groups are organized in the country this year. Several of these groups are against animals being used for food and fiber, even biomedical research. Most members have little contact with farm life. Some are opposed to keeping pets. Michelle's wish is that they would understand how animals raised on farms are being raised "in a healthy way with care for the animal." She also would like people to be aware of the value they place in research. For example, hogs' heart valves are sometimes used to replace diseased human heart valves.

Steve Fisher, a spirited member of the Flying Fingers 4-H Club, chose a catchy topic. He presented "Find it, Fold it, Fly it." He demonstrated in living action how to make different styles of paper airplanes and fly them. Many designs were his own innovations. He plotted different models, how long they flew, and how far they traveled. He presented his different models and research on a colorful poster board. His favorite is "The Bruser," which travels a little over 3 seconds.

Samantha Shears presented "Household Hazardous Waste...What are you doing to your water?" Samantha is a member of Newville Creators 4-H Club. She informed the audience that 3 to 10 gallons of hazardous materials lurk in most homes. When disposed of, these materials sink into the soil. One of her main points was not to drop hazardous waste down the drain. She had a convincing analogy, "If you

Lancaster Officials Pay Tribute To Houser

Officials of Lancaster County DHIA paid tribute to a long-time associate who died this week from injuries suffered in a fall in his orchard. J. Wilbur Houser, Lampeter, a farmer and milk tester for 37 years, died Tuesday morning at Lancaster General Hospital. He was 70.

Houser was a local supervisor from 1955 to 1992 and was head supervisor from 1963 to 1984. A former dairy and truck farmer, his work for DHIA won him the Southeastern Pennsylvania's top award for DHIA supervisors and was the first countian to be so honored. In 1962 he was named secretary of Pennsylvania DHIA.

In the early days as a milk tester, as they were called, the samples he gathered from local dairy herds were tested at his home. Now the work is done in State College at the central processing center.

"Wilbur Houser was active in the dairy industry, his church and other civic organizartions," Lancaster DHIA officials said. "He was also a dedicated family man, and he will be missed."

Computers Coming To The Barn

In the milking parlor, Ann Brooks works with the model of lap top computer the state directors approved for purchase for the technicians. In addition, the Dairy Comp 305 program is to be purchased to run the computers and transfer data from the barn to the DHIA Lab in State College.

Because information has been routinely transferred between buildings in the state operations, officials said this experience has helped to quicken the development of the tie-in from members' barns to the main frame computer at the lab.

In a recent seminar for directors, Jim Boyer said the 305 was usable over the whole range of different kinds of members and customers that DHIA serves. He said the technicians can use it for barn sheet entry and to produce test day reports. Because it simplifies things, dairy farmers can use it to help in herd management, and veterinarians can use it for as many herds as requested. Boyer is working on some modifications of his own that will make the program even easier to use in Pennsylvania.

"It's easy to use and it's powerful," Boyer said. "It was designed for large herds, but I haven't seen anything that would keep it from being used here."

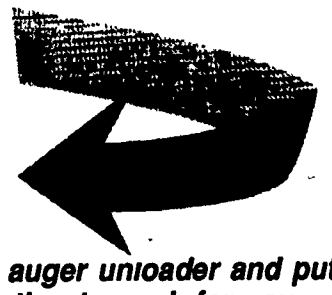
WE CUSTOM DESIGN SYSTEMS FOR YOU

DO A GOOD TURN



Turn in your old sweep arm auger unloader and put ForceFlo™ unloader's dual action to work for you.

The ForceFlo power sweep auger unloader is a powerful way to handle a Harvestore® brand structure full of high moistsure grain. Whenever the discharge auger is operated, the sweep auger also automatically goes to work. This forceful sweeping action is continuously undermining and removing grain from the bottom of the structure. Grain has less of a chance to set up and compact.

Turn in your old sweep arm unloader for ForceFlo's improved performance. Special trade-in deals and low interest financing packages are now in effect. Contact your authorized A.O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc. dealer today for more information.

Now is a good time to trade in your old sweep arm auger unloader and add a new twist to your feeding schedule.

Howard Named

against considering commercial interests, while Howard said he sees that as the core purpose of the organization — to breed an animal that is profitable all around.

"It was not an easy decision, but the philosophical differences needed to be brought out," Howard said.

He said that after reading some opinions, especially that commercial dairyman are not needed by the breed organization, he and many others became concerned that what they wanted out of the organization was going to be overlooked.

"That's one thing that is important. We better be concerned about commercial dairyman. That's the whole backbone of the industry. We can't be like the railroads. They thought they were in the railroad business and forgot they were in the transportation business. We in the are in the dairy industry, not just in the Holstein business.

"If a commercial dairyman decides he has better genetics than we can offer, then he isn't going to use the organization. We need to be sure that everything we do in this whole organization is profitable. Otherwise, we become an elitist organization and I don't think that's the direction we need to go.

"We're also concerned about seemingly going back in time to the way they used to evaluate our cattle," Howard said, talking about some of the opinions that reverting to using a dam-daughter comparison is more relevant than using today's herdmate comparison and an animal model.

Also, the ideal cow must reflect a functionality.

"One of the statements I made is we can't afford to breed cows like disposable diapers — use them once and throw away — nor can we sacrifice milk production for longevity," he said.

Also, as far as some of the hard issues, such as the financial problems facing national Dairy Herd Improvement Association and its connection to the breed organizations and the artificial insemination business, Howard said the solutions are within the people, not one sector.

"I think we need to work together as much as possible. I think we need to get together, rather than squabble over who pays. We should worry more about the services, because, basically, it all comes out of the dairyman's pocket anyway.

"We have to make sure that we as dairymen are doing things to make them (cows and services) profitable. Certainly there are things of value that we do that don't help every dairyman. And they are important," he said, referring to support of breed shows, which help promote and eventually market the breed.

Howard said that as director, members should not hesitate to telephone him or correspond.

"I'm as close as their phone, if they want to express their opinion. A director needs to be aware of the members' views. It can't go one way."

Some Surprising Results Of Well Water Survey

LEWISBURG (Union Co.) — A common misconception among the public is that farmers overuse pesticides and fertilizers and that this has contaminated groundwater.

Four years ago, EPA conducted a comprehensive research project to explore what was contaminating well water in the United States. The EPA study found that pesticides and nitrates do not pose a significant threat to drinking water in the US.

The research indicated that when and if it occurs, it is limited and site specific and not easily predictable by a variable such as soil type or crop.

This research project is commonly referred to as the National Pesticide Survey. It was conducted in two phases.

Phase 1 was completed in November 1990 and set out to describe the status of well water nationwide by analyzing 1,350 wells. These samples were tested for 126 pesticides, their byproducts, and nitrates.

Phase 2 of the project was completed in January 1992 and was designed to explain why pesticides and nitrates showed up in the wells where they did. What caused it? Was it unavoidable environmental factor or human error?

The EPA survey found that pesticides and nitrates do not pose a significant threat to drinking water wells in the U.S.

The 1990 report stated, "the vast majority of drinking wells in this country do not have levels of pesticides or nitrates that pose a risk to public health. Where pesticides were detected, they were usually found at low levels — below levels of health concern."

In fact, no community wells in the survey and only 0.6 percent of rural wells had pesticide levels above the lifetime health advisory level set by EPA. In addition, 1.2 percent of community wells and 2.4 percent of private wells had nitrate levels that exceeded 10 ppm. level for infants and young stock.

According to the Phase 2 report released in January 1992, more than 1,000 statistical tests were run by computer to attempt to relate positive nitrate and pesticide levels to other factors. The report concluded that the second phase could not find a strong relationship between factors that could contribute to groundwater contamination. In fact, the study notes many "inconsistencies."

Agriculture gets good marks on this report card. It doesn't eliminate the need to be careful. In addition, it does not address surface water concerns which are the local concerns in many communities regarding water quality.

Lancaster Selects 4-H Fashion Revue Winners

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

Taffeta and lace swirled between denim, cotton, and wool fashions modeled by 80 seamtresses at the Lancaster 4-H Fashion Revue held July 7, at the Farm and Home Center.

It was the annual Fashion Show that never fails to amaze Doris Thomas, home economist, that each year's winners display just as good or better talent than ever before.

For the event, all the county 4-H sewing clubs invite parents and friends to watch the fashion show where members modeled their projects. From travel kits and tote bags to prom gowns and coats, the fashions displayed reveal the color coordination and fashion design that is taught in the classes.

Senior and junior division winners were chosen to compete in regional competition at York on July 14. Alternates are also chosen and will compete if a winner cannot attend competition.

Senior winners are Amy Bernard, Marilyn Holloway, Marlene Enck, Kimberly Rohrer, Dusty Devine, Sharon LeFevre, Laura Shaeffer, and Becky Badger.

Senior alternates are Sarah Strickler, Treva Martin, Kathy Hurst, and Carla Devine.

Controls compaction, rough fields, soil erosion & residue management problems.

Adjustable front disc gangs cut the residue. Auto-reset shanks penetrate the soil 8 to 20" to break up compaction. The rear discs break clods, incorporate residue and level fields. To leave more surface residue and control erosion, raise the gang. Easy manual or hydraulic adjustments change disc cutting depth.

Now there's one way to manage surface residue and compaction problems... stop in and we'll talk.

wouldn't let your child drink it, why feed it to the earth?"

In the next demonstration, Becky Cornman and Sandra Anderson demonstrated "Udderfull Cow Foods" in a verbal duet. They informed the audience about milk, yogurt, cheese, ice cream, and butter. More than 4,000 years ago, cheese-making was thought to be an art. Now it is known to be a science! One of their concluding remarks was, "Bessie wants you to know that there are many products from the cow."

Winners have a choice of going on to regionals where they have more opportunities in public speaking. After Regionals, they travel on to State Days held in State College in August.

Jill Harnish Follows Her Father's Example

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

CHRISTIANA (Lancaster Co.) — For most of her life, Lancaster County Dairy Princess Jill Harnish has listened to her dad tell friends, "I'm lucky I don't need to work for a living because I can make a living off my hobby."

His philosophy sounds great to Jill, her sister Jenny, and brother Brian. All three decided to follow in their dad's footsteps to make a living off their hobby — farming.

R. Edwin Harnish shakes his head as he says, "Now I got bad luck. I must buy three farms instead of one."

The Harnish family farm has been in the family since 1934. In 1970, Ed purchased the 200-acre Christiana farm from his parents. He also rents an additional 200-acre neighboring farm.

"In the beginning, I liked the field work better than milking cows, but I soon learned that there's more money in cows and if you're going to make money, you got to pay attention to your cows," Harnish said.

As his love for cows grew so did his children. Now Brian, 23, works full time on the farm and has his own combine business. Jenny recently married Gary Bowman who farms in Paradise, and 17-year-old Jill has a passion for cows and vows to remain in dairy farming. She likes it so much that the evening of her first date was spent milking cows. It was an evening where everything went wrong — pipes burst, the compressor would not shut off — and the time it took to fix everything extended long past Jill's curfew. Since then, Jill and her date have had better success when they took over milking duties.

In addition to milking, Jill takes a strong interest in studying breeding lines. She and her father like to debate different breeding philosophies, which Jill claims that she often wins.

Her father good-naturedly said, "Although I'm the overseer, I just do whatever they (the kids) tell me to do."

Over the years, Jill has purchased 12 of her own cows. She buys registered Holsteins. She said, "I look at the breeding, the potential to milk, and for something that looks like it will last."

In the fall, Jill will be a senior at Solanco High School where she is active in FFA. Last year, Jill was part of the dairy judging team that competed at the national convention.

Keeping Up-to-date

Jill definitely plans to continue dairy farming, but her plans for college are undecided. She said that if she does go to college it probably won't be ag related since agriculture is constantly changing and much of the written information is outdated. She believes that she can keep more up-to-date by reading dairy-related articles and talking to other farmers.

"You pick up small things here and there and learn by trial and error. Just because something works for one guy doesn't mean it will for others. You've got to learn to decipher what to apply."

For the past one and a half years, the Harnishes have been feeding a total mixed ration to the herd and notice that herd averages are up to 20,000 pounds, 810 fat, and 660 protein.

About three years ago, Harnish returned to the old tradition of housing dry cows on a manure pack with straw and corn fodder used as bedding.

"The advantage is that it keeps cows off concrete, which is better for their legs, and it reduces udder endema," Harnish said.

Heifers are bred at 15 months and milking is done in a stall barn.

Hay King

Those who know Ed well refer to him as the Hay King, for he has received grand champion ribbons in two out of three categories for hay at Ag Progress, reserve champion at the Pennsylvania Farm Show, and grand champion at the Solanco Fair.

When pressed for his secret for growing top quality hay, he replied, "Do you think I'm going to allow you to print that in Lancaster Farming? Then I couldn't win anymore."

He did say that he uses a drying agent that only works in lagoons, not on grass.

Multiple Talents

A teen with multiple talents, Jill is an accomplished artist who won her first art award in first grade and went on to win many more. The most notable, according to Jill, is the one chosen for the Scholastic Art Show. In other years, she won gold keys for her work, but this year, her work went on for national exhibit.

The type of art Jill does depends the mood she is in. Jill said, "Sometimes I like wild and modern. Other times, traditional."

(Turn to Page B3)

As Lancaster County Dairy Princess, Jill Harnish has inherited boxes of promotional material that she stores in the wash house shown in the background. Her parents, Ed and Arlene, dissembled the building that was on Ed's parents home and erected it as a place for Arlene to make and store crafts.

Jill shows off one of her favorite cows. The state dairy princess pageant will conflict with the Solanco Fair where she shows sheep, pigs, steers, and cows.

Nicknamed the Hay King, Ed Harnish checks to see if the hay is drying properly.

Lancaster County Dairy Princess Jill Harnish with her parents, Ed and Arlene, sit in front of their dairy farm located at Nine Points.

Homestead Notes

Jill Harnish

Last year, she was assigned to draw a self portrait. She did a pencil drawing of herself as a veterinarin featured on Time magazine as Woman of the Year.

Since then, her dream to become a vet has declined. The deciding factor was the day she fainted while watching a vet perform a twisted stomach operation.

Jill has the distinction of beginning a newspaper before she entered kindergarten. The paper, called Nine Points News, began when the family's veterinarian handed the carbon papers to Jill when making a call.

Although Jill could not write, she asked her sister to write down stories that she told her about family and neighbors.

The neighbors enjoyed reading Jill's newspaper and soon she got subscriptions from not only neighbors but from those at a distance. The paper, published sporadically, contains exaggerated articles such as the one about a local township official who attempted suicide while on a family vacation, a Brownie Bake-Off contest, directions to make Christmas cards, a dating service, ads, and other "hot" community news.

Recently, Jill started to breed Border Collies. She is amazed at the intelligence shown by Border Collies, which are used to bring the cows from the meadow and to herd sheep.

In between helping on the farm, Jill works 15 hours weekly for a local hardware store.

Jill teaches a two-year-old Sunday school class at Bart Mennonite Church where she is also a member of the youth group.

In addition to having 12 cows of her own, Jill raises seven Suffolk market lambs, three pigs, and one steer.

Mother's Duties

Arlene keeps the books on the farm. Known as the creative idea person, Arlene has turned a wash house into her craft room where she dries flowers, weaves on a loom, weaves baskets, and makes crafts to sell at Christmas. She spends hours in her flower garden nurturing perennials and herbs and does the yard work.

Arlene serves as a Republican committeewoman, is a member of Farm Women Society 15, and helps on the farm. She has been a 4-H leader, Girl Scout leader, and Sunday School teacher.

Ed's Philosophies

Ed is taking a year off from community duties, but he had been township supervisor for six years, served on the Solanco Advisory Board, was a previous president of the Solanco Young Farmers, and this year was named Conservation Cooperative Farmer of the Year.

While Ed still considers farming his hobby, he said, "It's only enjoyable as long as we are making a decent living. Farming isn't as profitable as it used to be. I used to have money to buy toys now I can't."

Ed believes that the economy will force those who don't enjoy farming to get out. He said, "Dairy farming is too much work and too dirty work for a guy who isn't making money to stay in it. He isn't going to get up early seven days a week and get manure on him if he doesn't like cows."

"Microwave Magic"

By:
Carol Stark

Custards and puddings are a microwave specialty. Conventionally baked custard must be set in a pan of water, which provides moisture to prevent drying and browning. On the range top you must stir custard or pudding constantly to keep it free from lumps. Delicate custard microwaves smooth and creamy with a minimum of stirring, and the microwave oven does not dry or brown it. The variety of custards and puddings extends from simple desserts to dramatic looking presentations.

BASIC CASSEROLE CUSTARD

3 eggs
1/4 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/8 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cups milk

In a 1 1/2 quart casserole beat eggs, sugar, vanilla, and salt with table fork, until very well blended and sugar is dissolved. Place milk in glass measure. Microwave at High 4 minutes, until scalded. Gradually add to egg mixture, stirring well. Cover with casserole lid. Microwave at LOW 10 to 13 minutes, rotating dish 1/4 turn every 3 minutes, until set. Sprinkle top with nutmeg before serving.

Note: Covering with casserole lid is important for success. Cool before serving. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

CARAMEL FLAN

1/2 cup water
1/2 cup sugar
1 basic casserole custard

In 1 pt./glass measure place water and sugar, stirring well. Microwave at HIGH 10 to 12 minutes, until light but rich brown. (Do not let syrup get too dark before taking from oven as it continues to cook after it has been microwaved.) Pour 3/4 of caramel syrup into 1 1/2 qt. casserole and quickly rotate casserole to coat bottom and about halfway up sides with caramel. Let cook to harden before adding custard. Drizzle remianing 1/4 of syrup in fine ribbons onto ungreased cookie sheet to harden.

Prepare custard in small mixing bowl. Pour or strain mixture into caramel lined casserole. Cover with casserole lid. Microwave at LOW 10 to 13 minutes, rotating dish 1/4 turn every 3 minutes, until set. Chill throughly. Unmold onto serving plate which has shallow rim. Crush the syrup which has hardened into a brittle and sprinkle in a wreath shape over top of flan.

NOTE: Covering with casserole lid is important for success. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

FLOATING ISLANDS

1/3 cup sugar
3 tablespoons cornstarch
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 3/4 cups milk
2 drops yellow food color (optional)
2 egg yolks, well beaten
2 egg whites
1/4 cup sugar

In a 2 quart casserole blend together sugar, cornstarch and salt until well mixed. Add milk and food coloring, stirring until well blended. Microwave at HIGH for 8 to 10 minutes until smooth and slightly thickened.

Stir a small amount of hot pudding quickly into yolks. Return egg mixture to hot pudding, mixing well. Microwave at MEDIUM HIGH 2 to 4 minutes, stirring after 1 minute, until slightly thickened.

Beat egg whites until foamy, on high speed of mixer. Gradually add sugar, beating to a stiff glossy meringue. Drop meringue immediately in 8 to 10 mounds over hot pudding. Microwave at MEDIUM 1 to 2 minutes to set meringues slightly. Chill before serving. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

NOTE: There are two ways to microwave individual meringues. The traditional way to serve floating islands is to drop mounds of meringue over hot pudding. Microwave on MEDIUM 1 to 2 minutes. Serve with small, crisp cookies, if desired.

For best shape cook pudding for maximum time and microwave meringues separately. Place sheet of brown wrapping paper on a flat cookie sheet and drop 6 to 8 mounds of meringue in a circle on paper. Slide paper from cookie sheet into oven. Microwave at MEDIUM 1 to 2 minutes. Slide back onto cookie sheet and remove from oven to cool.

BASIC BREAD PUDDING

4 cups bread cubes lightly packed into cup
About 4 or 5 slices of bread
1/2 cup brown sugar (packed)
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup raisins
2 cups milk
1/4 cup butter
2 eggs, beaten

Spread bread cubes evenly in 8 inch round dish. Sprinkle evenly with brown sugar and salt, then raisins.

Measure milk into 1 qt. measuring cup. Add butter. Microwave at HIGH 4 minutes, until butter is melted and milk is warm. Rapidly stir in eggs with a fork and mix well. Pour over bread cubes in dish. Microwave at MEDIUM HIGH 9 to 12 minutes, rotating dish 1/2 turn after 6 minutes. When cooked, center may still be slightly soft, but it will set up as pudding cools. Serve warm or chilled. Makes about 6 servings.

COOKING COMMERCIAL DRY PUDDING MIX

Since there is less evaporation in microwaving, microwaved pudding is often creamier in texture, lighter in color and greater in volume than it is conventionally.

1 package (3 3/4 oz.) pudding or pie filling mix, NOT INSTANT
1/2 cup milk
1 1/2 cups milk

Empty pudding mix into 1 qt. glass measure. Add 1/2 cup milk and stir unitl all mix is moistened and blended. Add 1 1/2 cups more milk and blend well. Microwave at HIGH 6 to 8 minutes, stirring thoroughly every 3 minutes. Pour into 4 or 5 serving dishes. Cover top of pudding with waxed paper or plastic wrap to prevent "SKIN" from forming on top, if desired. Serve cool. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

It was our lucky day. No, make that, it was our Lucky's day.

Lucky is a cow. On a recent morning, early on what evolved into one of the hottest, stickiest, most humid days of the season, Lucky gave birth to a bouncing baby girl calf. This was a decidedly ordinary and routine blessed event.

Which is unusual because Lucky is not necessarily a "rountine" cow.

Lucky, on occasion, displays an attitude problem. Plus, she's not the smartest animal in the herd.

Early on in her first milking lactation, Lucky would occasionally dance and prance when her udder was washed or the milk attached. Again, this is fairly ordinary, especially with first-time heifers.

Then one day, unbeknownst to any of us, Lucky scratched or bruised one of her teats. And, during afternoon milking, when our student/employee Scott attached the milker, she "nailed" him in the face with a swift back foot, leaving him with a bloodied nose and slightly crooked glasses.

It was his unlucky day, one he's never forgotten. Lucky day for me though; most evenings, I would have been milking that side of the barn.

And while the teat soon healed, apparently the memory didn't. On occasion, for seemingly no reason, the milkers would fly from Lucky. We all learned to exercise a little extra caution with her unpredictability.

So we collectively groaned a little when Lucky calved, wondering if her temperament had mellowed. (We should be so lucky). But, when The Farmer tried to move her and her calf that morning, she promptly managed to elude him (and nearly flatten him in the process), fleeing with a group of heifers into a more distant pasture and abandoning her calf in the process.

By evening Lucky showed no sign of a voluntary return. Via three-wheeler, she was herded toward the barn, so her calf would have time to nurse before we turned her back into the milking herd. Lucky let the calf nurse, then promptly high-tailed it back to the lower lot, baby by her side.

The second time Lucky was herded to the barn, jumped right into a stall, and uneventfully let The Farmer milk her - lucky for him.

A half-hour later, as I fed calves, Solomon's barking announced a heifer breakout. Heifers were parading out the end of the dairy barn, where heifers aren't supposed to be at all. Heifers in the center alley, heifers in the feed alleys, heifers with their muzzles buried in the feed carts. And no one around to help me.

It took several trips back, forth and around the barn to corral the bunch of four-legged busybodies. I'd chase several out of one alleyway and out the door, run back to chase another batch out another alleyway, and by the time I got back the originals were back in again. When I thought I'd rounded them all up, three more appeared at the feed cart.

Turned out that after Lucky had been put in the barn, the gate to the barn hadn't been closed because all heifers were believed to be around the feed bunk. This batch of stragglers lingering in the meadow smelled that open gate. At least it seems they possess that ability.

Eventually, I corraled them outside - lucky for me.

Back at calf feeding, and to my amazement, a squirrel zipped past down the shoulder of the road. Squirrels are a rare commodity around the farmstead, due to the headhunter cats who patrol the place. This was one brave (or not too bright) squirrel - probably the same one earlier seen surveying the shop area from the vantage point of a tractor seat.

Moments later, to another round of frantic barking, a gray blur with a bushy tail zipped past in the opposite direction, dog hot on its heels.

A fruitless pursuit - lucky for the squirrel.

Turned out to be a Lucky day for everyone.

4-H'ers Go Camping

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — 4-H members from 20 Eastern Pennsylvania counties are experiencing outdoor living this summer at 4-H Camp Shehaqua located in the Pocono Mountains at beautiful Hickory Run State Park near White Haven.

The Chester County 4-H campers, age 8-14, finished their week-long stay in rustic cabins, meeting new friends, and exploring the out-of-doors. To assist the 55 campers, seven 4-H counselors age 15-19 and numerous adult 4-H staff members and volunteers accompanied the group.

Chester County's camp theme this year was "4-H Uniting the Nations," emphasizing that diverse races, cultures and ethnic backgrounds make each 4-Her unique. Campers got a taste of the global nature of 4-H by forming "continental groups," then making a flag from a chosen country to be displayed during the opening campfire ceremonies.

Each workshop offered was part of a 4-H project—woodworking, crafts, riflery, nature and physical fitness. Divided according to geographic regions, campers were made more aware of the ecological balance and unity that are needed to unite nations into a global community.

Summer Salad Sensations

Pick up almost any magazine or newspaper and you will find an article on how people are eating healthy and "lite." Healthy food, can and should be, taste-tempting and attractive. What better item to include on your menu than salads.

According to a recent Gallup Survey, 138 million Americans eat a salad at least every other day. Salads provide an easy way to add fruits, vegetables, and breads, all of which are recommended for a healthy diet.

Summertime and the living is easy — the cooking should be, too. It's the time of the year when we think quick, cool, and light. Add great taste, and you've described the recipes that follow.

'90S STYLE CHICKEN SALAD

2 whole broiler-fryer chicken breasts, halved, skinned
4 broiler-fryer chicken thighs, skinned
3 cups chicken broth
5 teaspoons curry powder, divided
1 can mandarin oranges, drained
½ cup unsalted cashew halves
½ cup chopped pitted dates
2 teaspoons diced red pepper
1 cup mandarin orange yogurt
½ cup reduced calorie mayonnaise
¼ cup flaked coconut
¼ cup finely chopped chutney
Curly lettuce cups
Flaked coconut
Chopped cashews

In deep saucepan, place chicken. Add broth and 4 teaspoons curry powder. Cover and simmer about 30 minutes or until chicken is fork tender. Remove from heat and allow chicken to cool in broth. When cool, separate meat from bones. Discard bones, skin, and broth. Cut chicken in bite-size pieces. In large bowl, place chicken, oranges, cashew halves, dates, and red pepper; set aside. In a small bowl, make dressing by mixing together yogurt, mayonnaise, coconut, chutney, and the remaining teaspoon of curry powder; blend well. Fold yogurt dressing into chicken-orange mixture. Arrange lettuce cups on large platter. Fill with salad; garnish with coconut and cashews. Makes 6 servings.

VEAL-ARTICHOKE WITH GARLIC-CHIVE DRESSING

6-ounce jar marinated artichoke hearts
2 tablespoons white wine vinegar
1 teaspoon minced chives
1 clove garlic, crushed
1 small red bell pepper, cut into short thin strips
1 pound veal leg cutlets
Assorted salad greens

Drain artichokes; reserve marinade. Stir together 1½ tablespoons reserved marinade, vinegar, chives, and garlic in large bowl. Coarsely chop artichoke. Add to dressing mixture in bowl. Stir in red pepper. If necessary, pound veal leg cutlets to ¼ -inch thickness. Cut into 3x1-inch strips. Combine veal strips with 2 tablespoons reserved artichoke; allow to stand 5 minutes. Heat nonstick skillet over medium-high heat 5 minutes. Drain veal strips well. Cook half of veal in preheated skillet just until cooked through, 2 to 3 minutes; stir occasionally. Remove veal from skillet and add to bowl with artichoke mixture. Allow skillet to reheat, then cook remaining veal strips and add to artichoke mixture. Toss veal-artichoke mixture to coat with dressing. Serve immediately over salad greens. If desired, veal mixture may be refrigerated, covered, to chill before serving. Makes 4 servings.

ALFREDO PASTA SALAD

1½ quarts plain low-fat yogurt
1½ cups mayonnaise
4 ounces parmesan cheese, grated
6 tablespoons dried basil leaves
4 teaspoons garlic salt
1½ teaspoons onion powder

Stir together yogurt, mayonnaise, cheese, and spices. Refrigerate several hours or overnight.

½ cup thinly sliced green onions
¾ teaspoon garlic salt, divided
¼ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1 cup plain yogurt
2 tablespoons buttermilk
4 ounces crumbled Blue cheese

Cut potatoes into ¾ -inch pieces. Cook in boiling water to cover 15 to 20 minutes or until tender, drain. Combine potatoes, onions, ½ teaspoon garlic salt and pepper; toss gently to combine. Stir together yogurt, buttermilk, Blue cheese, and remaining ¼ teaspoon garlic salt. Add to potatoes; toss gently to coat. Cover and chill at least 2 hours.

NINE DAY PICKLED CABBAGE

Clinton County Dairy Princess Ivy Seyer sends this recipe to celebrate national Ice Cream Month.

ICE CREAM is the food produced by freezing, while stirring, a pasteurized mix composed of one or more dairy ingredients, sweetening agents, flavorings and with or without eggs or egg products, stabilizer, emulsifier or other optional ingredients. Federal standards require that plain ice cream contain at least 10 percent milkfat and 20 percent total milk solids by weight.

FROZEN CUSTARD, FRENCH ICE CREAM AND FRENCH CUSTARD ICE CREAM conform to the definition for ice cream except that one or more of the optional egg ingredients is used in a specified quantity.

ICE MILK is prepared from the same ingredients as ice cream, but its milk content is between 2 to 7 percent and the total milk solids content is not less than 11 percent. When drawn from the freezer and sold without hardening, it is called soft serve.

FRUIT SHERBET consists of a dairy ingredient, fruit or fruit juice and sweetening. Water, flavorings, sweeteners and stabilizers are added. Sherbets contain a minimum of 1 percent and maximum of 2 percent milkfat, with 2 to 5 percent total milk solids. Sherbets have more sugar ice cream.

WATER ICE is similar to sherbet except that no dairy products or egg ingredients are used.

TAKING TIME

Summer Time-Savers

What has the time gone? It's mid-July!

Each day you have a fixed number of hours to work with-24. You can let those hours slip by or you can manage them. Controlling how you spend your time, you can really get the most out of it. And that's particularly important when you've been longing to lounge in the backyard and watch the sun go down just one time.

Summertime. We have so many hopes for it. Family fun. Warm weather projects. But the clock is ticking. It's mid-July.

Are you planning your time well or are you being victimized by time "stealers"? One summer time-stealer is being involved in too many activities. If you are constantly booked, you never really get to relax and enjoy the moments of summer.

Another stealer is the television. Okay, so the Olympics will be on, but how many other summertime hours is your television stealing from you. Set a rule for the rest of the summer that at least two weeknights are TV-free. Note what a difference this can make.

The phone can also steal time. Set aside an hour in the evening to complete any necessary phone calls. Throughout the day, jot notes about people that you need to call. Then make all of them at one time. This is more efficient use of time than stopping a task each time you think of someone. It also allows you to honestly cut short conversations because you have "several other calls to make before 8:00 p.m."

Now that you've nabbed some of the common time stealers, think about practicing these time-saving strategies. Remeber to use "To Do" lists. They help jog your memory so you can jump into a task. They can help you organize a shopping trip, so that you don't have to back track or make several trips in one week to the same store. The lists can also help you communicate jobs to others-children, spouses. Posting a To Do list on a refrigerator or bulletin board will help others keep on track too. Making a list at the end of the day is a good strategy! You will have no difficulty naming the items you didn't finish. Trying to make the same list the next morning may take more time and be less complete.

Here are some other time-saving ideas. Buy birthday and special occasion cards in advance, so you don't have to run to the store to pick up one "thank you" card. Plan meals. Cook a whole chicken and piece it into quantities you can use. Perhaps separate some for chicken salad, some for pasta salad, a container for chicken barbeque, and another freezer box full to be used with salsa and tortillas. Intersperse these meals with others using fresh fruits, vegetables or other meats.

Consider eliminating knick-knacks and gadgets that require more cleaning than they are worth. Take advantage of bank services that allow you to direct deposit transfer automatically. Take advantage of quiet moments to concentrate of particularly difficult projects.

Practice time-saving rules steps with children, too. Give each child a laundry basket to store in his or her room. In fact giving a child two smaller baskets (one for whites and one for bright colors) elelminates sorting. This simplifies wash time. It may be wise with younger children to continue to search for hidden crayons and tissues.

Ironically, it takes time to save time. But the time you spend planning your day, will be returned to you several times over. And with the saved time, treat yourself to a tall glass of mint tea and a good book on the porch swing. Or invite a friend for an evening visit.

Take time to enjoy the days of summer.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Occasionally I receive a letter from one of the readers of Lancaster Farming. They cover a wide range of subjects. Sometimes they want information on growing a certain vegetable or they might want to know where a particular place is located. Sometimes I get to meet the people personally as when one couple invited us to see their large, beautiful log house in Chester County. They have a bed and breakfast establishment and I'm sure they work very hard to take care of their visitors.

One reader that I am especially thinking of this morning is one who sent me an old-fashioned, pressed, pink double petaled rose in an envelope. You see, I'd mentioned that my bush on the farm had died as too many trees shaded its home. This lady said she would give me a bush if I visited her.

I kept the letter and carefully put it away until recently, one year later, when Allen and I stopped at the couples' very large 19-room home. This elderly couple have kept the furnishings that their parents and grandparents had. Thus, their house is a virtual museum. They showed us their eight bedrooms and also their large garden. Keeping busy seems to be best for older folks.

Yes, I got three small rose bushes as my husband dug them during a Sunday afternoon shower. For the first time ever, I forgot my pocketbood when we drove away. We had to turn around when we were a mile away and go back for it. We gave them a box of strawberries even though they grew some too. We had a pleasant visit.

Summer Salad Sensations

FRUIT SALAD WITH HONEY-VANILLA DRESSING

1 pear, cored
1 nectarine
1 peach
2 plums
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup water
Mint leaves for garnish

Slice fruit into wedges. Mix together lemon and water. Dip fruit into lemon-water mixture. Arrange fruit on a platter, garnish with mint.

In bowl, combine Honey-Vanilla Dressing ingredients:

½ cup nonfat plain yogurt
2 teaspoons vanilla extract
1 tablespoon honey.

Place dressing in bowl for dipping or pour over fruit. Serves 4.

ANSWER — Esther Stoltzfus of Lancaster sent a recipe that Brenda Fouts of New York had requested.

Peach Marmalade

Mix together:
5 cups peaches
1 can crushed pineapples
7 cups sugar

Bring mixture to a rolling boil for 15 minutes. Add 1 large or 2 small boxes of desired-flavored gelatin. Cook until dissolved. Pour in jars and seal.

Esther said that she also uses a fruit pectin called Jelease to make jam that turns out fine. The pectin, which she purchased from a Save-A-Lot store, is much cheaper than other brands.

Also, thanks to Barbara Ann Martin of New York for sending recipes for making jam or jelly without Sure Jell.

Grape Marmalade

6 cups whole grapes (stemmed and washed)
6 cups sugar

Mix grapes and sugar. Add no water. Boil 20 minutes. Put through a sieve. Pour into glass jars and boil in water bath for 15 to 20 minutes.

Strawberry Freezer Jam

6 cups strawberries, mashed
6 cups sugar
1 cup Dutch Jell*
¾ cup Instant Clear Jel

Mix Clear Jell with 1 cup sugar. Add the strawberries to the remaining sugar. Let set 10 minutes.

Mix the Dutch Jell into 2¼ cups water and boil 1 minute. Pour over strawberries and stir well. Add the Clear Jell mixture and mix well. Pour into containers and store in freezer.

*Dutch Jell and Clear Jell can be purchased at bulk food stores.

Also, thanks to Eva Southard, Glen Rock, for sending the following recipe.

Peach Jam

3 pounds peaches
3 pounds sugar
2 oranges
1 small jar maraschino cherries

Peel peaches and oranges and finely chop. Mix together peaches, oranges, and sugar and bring mixture to a boil for 10 minutes. Strain and boil syrup until it jells. Cut up a small jar of maraschino cherries and mix fruit and syrup. Bring to a boil. Let stand to cool. Fill containers and freeze.

— Mrs. J. F. Lehman, Collegeville, requested a recipe for stuffing that tastes similar to Stove Top stuffing mix. Thanks to Betty Light, Lebanon, for sending recipes.

French Onion Bread Stuffing

½ cup butter
2 large onions, diced
2 cloves garlic
½ teaspoon ground savory
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
12-ounces toasted bread cubes
¾ cup grated Parmesan cheese
½ cup sliced green onions
1½ cups chicken broth

Melt butter in large skillet over medium heat. Add onions; cook and stir 6 to 7 minutes or until soft. Stir in garlic, savory, and nutmeg. In a large bowl, place bread cubes, cheese, and green onions. Toss, add onion mixture and toss again. Stir in chicken broth until mixture is moist.

Place in 2 loaf pans that are thoroughly buttered and bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes.

ANSWER — Roland Kamoda, Monongahela, wanted to know what is wrong when the oil separates from the other ingredients in homemade mayonnaise and it is very runny. Thanks to a Union Bridge, Md., reader who writes that separation of oil in mayonnaise indicates that the oil was added too fast during preparation. Once this happens, the mayonnaise does not thicken. Oil should be added drop by drop while mixing in a blender. In this way a permanent emulsion can be made that the mayonnaise will not be running.

HOT BACON DRESSING OVER GREENS

1 egg
2½ tablespoons sugar
½ to 1 tablespoon flour
Pinch salt
1½ tablespoons salad dressing
3 tablespoons vinegar
1 small onion

Mix together ingredients. Add enough milk to mixture to double the amount. In saucepan, fry

8-ounces bacon, cut in small pieces

Pour all ingredients into saucepan and cook until mixture thickens. Stir constantly. Pour over dandelions, endive, spinach or lettuce.

2 tablespoons sugar

JELL-O SALAD

6-ounces orange-flavored gelatin
2 cups hot water
6-ounces lemon-flavored gelatin
1 small can mandarin oranges, drained and juice saved

EATING ON THE ROAD

Summertime finds many people on the road traveling by car, motorhome or bicycle on trips that range from an afternoon to a couple of months. Traveling is a way of life for some people and well-deserved vacation for others.

Where and what to eat are repeated questions on such trips. Time, money, nutrition and eating enjoyment are factors that find their way into the answers.

If you are traveling with hungry children, the safest alternative is to take your own food. There is nothing more distresssing than to be 100 miles from nowhere with a wailing, hungry child on your hands.

But improperly stored food could result in an unwanted vacation souvenir—foodborne illness.

Packing and storing food with food safety in mind can prevent this vacation disaster, and is not that difficult. Just remember the Five Rules of Traveling with Food.

1. Plan Ahead. A well-stocked cooler is a must. Have plenty of ice or frozen gel-packs on hand before you start packing.

What to take? Some foods do not require refrigeration-peanut butter and jelly and some cheeses, for example. Perishable foods, like meat, poultry, eggs and fish do, so if you are taking summer salads, making sandwiches on the road or brining food to cook over the course of your vacation, plan to keep them on ice in your cooler throughout the trip.

2. Pack Safely. Pack perishables directly from the refrigerator to the cooler, You can take frozen food directly from the freezer to the cooler. It will thaw during the trip, extending its safety and shelf-life.

A full cooler will maintain its cold temperature longer than one that is only partially filled. Pack remaining space with more ice or fruit and non-perishable foods.

Securely overwrap or bag foods that may drip or leak, particularly raw meat, poultry or fish.

Put the cooler in the passenger section of the car instead of in the hot trunk.

3. Preserve the cold temperature of the food by replenishing the ice as soon as it starts melting.

4. Pitch any foods that warm above refrigerator temperature (40 degrees F.). Food poisoning bacteria grow rapidly at warm temperatures. At the end of the day, if the ice has melted and the food feels warm, discard any perishable foods.

5. Protect your family from disease-causing bacteria by keeping hands and utensils clean. If soap and water will not be available, pack some moist towelettes. Bag and set aside dishes and utensils to wash with hot soapy water when you reach your destination.

Offering a small snack every hour or two will prevent boredom during long car trips. Offer a snack before your children announce that they are hungry.

Some snacks are better than others in the car-fresh and dried fruit, cheese and soft cookies are fairly easy for little hands to manage without making a mess.

SUN Area Dairy Princess Michelle Dugan with Alternates Becky Dugan and Michele Renninger will promote the dairy industry in Snyder, Union, Northumberland, and Montour counties.

SUN Area Dairy Princess Represents Four Counties

WATSONTOWN (Northumberland Co.) — Michelle Dugan of Northumberland County is the new SUN AREA DAIRY PRINCESS. SUN AREA includes Snyder, Union, Northumberland, and Montour counties.

Michelle is the daughter of George and Barbara Dugan of Watsontown. She received her crown from Francine Martz, Dalmatia. The two alternate princesses are Becky Dugan, daughter of George and Barbara Dugan; and Michele Renninger, daughter of Walter and Diane Renninger, McClure, Snyder County.

The SUN Area Princess Pageant was held Saturday evening June 27, at the Susquehanna Valley Mall, Selinsgrove, at 7:30 p.m.

The Boscov Store in Susquehanna Valley Mall sponsored Dairy Days along with the help of the SUN Area Dairy Promotion Committee.

Dairy week began June 22, with displays about the dairy industry; good nutrition, healthy eating; 4-H clubs and Farm Credit Assoc. Mark Wehr's Dairy Equipment, Mifflinburg, provided gates to make pens for the animals in the petting area outside the Boscov Store. There were six breeds of dairy calves, Ayrshire, Brown Swiss, Guernsey, Holstein, Jersey and Milking Shorthorn. Area 4-H clubs brought their animals. These animals were a contrast to the "Turkey Hill" giant cow nearby.

Friday eveing, June 26, Turkey Hill Dairies, provided ice cream to build a giant sundae on the mall stage outside the Boscov Store. The 7-foot-tall sundae had 138 gallons ice cream, covered by chocolate, nuts and strawberries. The Sun Area promotion committee dipped and served the free ice cream sundaes to the crowd. More than 2,000 sundaes were served.

Saturday, June 27, began with the Snyder County Holstein Club serving milk punch to consumers. The SUN Area dairy promotion committee had Tee shirts, cookbooks, and other related items for sale. Between 11 a.m. and 3 p.m. a dairy puppet show was held on the mall stage by the Clinton County Promotion Comm.

At 7:30 p.m., The Sun Area Dairy Princess Pageant began with Todd Steward, from radio station WILQ Williamsport, serving as the master of ceremonies. Jane Hawn, public relations director of Boscov's narrated the fashion show. The reigning princess, Francine Martz, and the contestants served as models for the fashion show. All fashions were provided by the Boscov Store.

William Sheaffer was honored for his many years of service to the Sun Area dairy promotion committee. Karen Auker, Drums, provided the music for the evening.

Dear Golden Pride/Rawleigh
In September of 1985, I had back surgery to correct a lower back problem from an injury that happened in 1970 Six months after the operation, I woke up one morning with extreme lower back pain I went to the doctor and was sent to a specialist who told me I had rheumatiod arthritis and it would gradually get worse In September of 1990, I started taking Combination 23 I took six in the morning and six at night for five days, then cut back to four in the morning and four at night After five days, the pain was gone Now I take three in the morning and three in the evening, and I am still getting great results

Steve Spicer

Dear Golden Pride/Rawleigh
On June 25 at Shipshewana Flea Market we met Ben and he explained Golden Pride/Rawleigh to us. He told us to try Formulas #1, #2 and Combination #23 for arthritis. We decided to give it a try since I had allergic reactions to all the medicines doctors gave me and they would no longer prescribe any more medicine. We are very pleased now as I can walk a mile or more without the cane or crutches when before I could only go a short distance. I would advise anyone with arthritis to give it a try. It has done a lot of good for me

No Fake Image For Onalee Smith

CAROL SMITH
Mercer Co. Correspondent

GREENVILLE (Mercer Co.) — "Being a dairy princess is not only rewarding, it is a contest challenge," says Onalee Smith, PA Alternate Dairy Princess from Mercer County.

"It is a challenge because we (the dairy princesses) are constantly trying to promote the dairy industry and dairy products to the consumers. The consumers are our toughest audience and once you have made an impression on them, then it is all easy and downhill from there. It is just knowing how to make that impression. I feel the best way to make an impression on a consumer is just to be yourself and that alone will make a positive impression on the consumer, the dairy products, and the dairy industry.

"If you present yourself as a fake and imitation person, then you are only promoting a fake product, however, if you present yourself as a "real" and wholesome person, then you certainly are promoting a "real" product. That is what a dairy princess wants to accomplish—A "real" image promoting a "real" product!"

Onalee is the duaghter of Thomas and Carol Smith of Greenville. She has two brothers, Vinton and Thomas. She is 22 years old and is certainly no "new kid on the block" when it comes to farming because she grew up on their 290-acre farm, "Lazy Acres Dairy," she would not change that for anything in the world.

"Growing up on a farm has so many advantages. Your morals and ideals are more adapted because you realize that it takes a lot of hard work to make a living on a farm. You mature faster and learn to respect the environment and everything around you," she said.

Onalee was Mercer County Alternate Dairy Princess for 1990-1991 and decided to run for the title a second time.

"I really had a lot of fun promoting the Dairy industry. I certainly had a lot of support so I decided to try again. I am glad I did because I won and this has been the most exciting year of my life! I never imagined I would meet so many nice people. When I was crowned PA Alternate, I was ecstatic! It really has been a fantastic year and I would encourage all young girls to be a dairy princess. It will be a time you will never forget."

For her Dairy Princess scrapbook, Onalee received one of two top prizes during state pageant competition.

Onalee graduated from Commodore Perry High School in 1987. In high school, she was involved in many sports and activities. She played basketball for four years, volleyball and softball for three years. Onalee was also Student Council president and the first S.A.D.D. (Students Against Driving Drunk) president in Mercer County.

She was approached by her guidance counselor and school nurse about beginning S.A.D.D. chapter and today every school in Mercer County has a program to help prevent drinking and driving.

Onalee started college in the fall of 1987 and graduated from Edinboro University in December of 1991 with a bachelor's degree in criminal justice. She recently took her law school entrance exam and would really like to attend law school either this fall or next spring.

She currently works for Palmer/Snyder Furniture Company as a sales assistant.

"I have made so many friends all over the state. Most of them are other dairy princesses or people related to the dairy industry, but there have been others. People really seem to be receptive to you when you are promoting dairy products. They seem interested and you just hope that they are really learning what you are trying to teach them. It is kind of like being a teacher and the consumers are your students. Let them ask questions and you answer them as best as you can or vice-versa. In the process, you are both learning something about the other."

Onalee has many hobbies and interests. She enjoys the outdoors and especially participating in outdoor sports. Swimming and boating are her two favorites. She also

Anita Meck Speaks Out For Beef

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

WILLOW STREET (Lancaster Co.) — Poultry, pork or beef? What does Anita Meck like best?

As the Beef Industry Representative, Anita declines a choice, but says that she believes the meat industry on the whole gets a bad rap from the media and needs someone to remind them of the benefits of including meat in the diet.

In the last few years, Anita has been the Lancaster County Poultry Queen for one year, the Pork Ambassador for one year, and recently she was appointed the Beef Industry Representative for one year.

Since all three of these meats are raised by her parents, Ken and Esther Meck, Anita has a working understanding of what goes on behind the scenes in the three meat industries. The Mecks raise about 200 head of beef, 50,000 chickens, and have a farrow to finish hog operation on their Willow Street farm.

"There are a lot of myths about meat, especially red meats," Anita said.

She hopes to diffuse these myths by handing out literature and talking to consumers who attend store promotions and conventions.

For those concerned with the cholesterol found in meat, Anita stresses, "The key is moderation."

Beef is lower in fat and calories than before as the result of new breeding and feeding techniques.

She tries to avoid animal rightists since she considers it pointless to try to help them understand her viewpoint. For TV viewers who watched media coverage of a meat packing plant and are wary of eating meat, Anita answers, "There are a few bad businesses out there as in everything else."

For herself, Anita believes that meat is perfectly safe to eat, and that much of the bad publicity is often taken out of context.

"Beef is the only meat that contains heme iron. This is much more usable by the body than iron found in other foods. If you eat beef, it helps your body to absorb other sources of iron better as long as the other foods are consumed at a meal that includes meat. My work is most satisfying if I can change a person's way of eating," she said.

A recent beef research campaign showed that many consumers did not know how to use the beef cuts available in the supermarket. To change this, more point of purchase materials will be used in supermarket displays to give consumers ideas and recipes for the beef cuts. Part of Anita's job is to hold cooking demonstrations so that consumers can taste the meat and know how to prepare it for their own use.

Recently, Anita attended a Beef Council workshop to learn how to prepare beef by marinating and using stir fry and grilling methods. She will use these methods for store and group promotions while handing out samples.

Anita is a senior at Millersville University where chemistry is her major and mathmatics and business marketing is a minor. During the school year, she worked as a secretary assistant in the chemistry office and will work as a lab assistant during the fall semester. She is president of the American Chemical Society at the University.

As Beef Industry Representative for one year, Anita Meck is responsible for encouraging consumers to include beef and veal in their diets. Anita helps her parents, Ken and Esther Meck, with the 220 steers, 50,000 chickens, and farrow to finish operation at their Willow Street Farm.

Anita hopes to have a career in the ag-chemistry field. During the summer months, she works for the Chester Water Authority in the lab and does stream studies.

Anita is a coach for the Lancaster County 4-H Meats Judging Team and a director for the West Lampeter Community Fair.

Clarion-Venango To Hold Coronation

TIONESTA (Forest Co.) — The official crowning of the 1992 Clarion-Venango Dairy Princess will be held on July 11.

Tracy Wagner, the 1991 Clarion-Venango Dairy Princess, will crown Robin M. Walls of Emlenton. She is the daughter of Charles and Nancy Walls. She will be a senior at Keystone High School in the fall, where she is active in four bands, the Panther Buddies and National Honor Society. She is also very active in 4-H, Girl Scouts, Jr. Holstein Club, and many community activities. She is employed part time by Ila Hunsberger. She plans to attend Penn State to study agribusiness.

This year, Robin will have five dairy ambassadors to help her in promoting the consumption and sale of dairy products to consumers. They are Tracy Waner, Sami Willyoung, Catherine Walls, Erin Hersman, and KayDee Patterson. Robin and these girls will be representing the farmers of Clarion and Venango counties in promoting dairy products.

The coronation will begin at 7:15 p.m. July 11, at Town and Country Days, being held at the Gay-Mar Holstein Farm, located at R.D.1, Tionesta. Watch for signs between Tionesta and Lake Lucy off Routes 36 and 208.

The public is invited to attend this free celebration, sponsored by the Clarion-Venango County Dairy Promotion Committee.

Perry County Chooses Dairy Princess

NEW BLOOMFIELD (Perry Co.) — Tracey Sauder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Sauder, Jr., Ickesburg, was crowned as the Perry County Dairy Princess recently. She was chosen from a field of three at the Dairy Princess Pageant held in the Extension Office conference room in New Bloomfield.

Tracey will be a senior this fall at West Perry. She is an active member of FFA, and plans to run for a state office next year. She also plans to further her education at Penn State for agricultural education.

Colleen Kretzing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Kretzing and Marel Raub, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Raub were named as Tracey's alternates. Rebecca Innerst, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Innerst, and Megan Stephens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Stephens, will assist Tracey as Dairy Misses.

Tracey, Colleen, and Marel each performed an informative skit or speech. Tracey taught the audience what the REAL seal meant, and Marel showed what nutritional value you can get from milk and milk products. Colleen entertained with a skit about what would happen if we would run out of milk.

Entertainment was provided by Joanne McMillen and "Ronda" the pink cow that just was not happy. Beverely Amsler from LOVE 99 assisted as emcee. The judges for the princess contest were Ann Day of Shippensburg, Larry Swartz of Lancaster, and Barbara Wilson of Port Royal.

Ask The Master Food Preserver

Question: My mother always sealed her jams and jellies with paraffin. Is this safe?

Answer: No. We do not recommend using paraffin because it is almost impossible to obtain a perfect seal. Growth of mold occurs and the toxins that result can contaminate the jellies. Molds can be carcinogens or cancer causing. We urge everyone making jams and jellies to use Mason canning jars with the two-piece lids. They need to be sterilized first and then after the jars are filled and the lids tightened, processed in a boiling water canner for 5 minutes.

Question: Can I reduce the amount of sugar in my jelly recipes?

Answer: no. Always use the full amount of sugar in the recipe. Sugar helps in gel formation, serves as a preserving agent and contributes to the flavor of the jellied product. It also has a firming effect on the fruit. Most recipes strive for a 65 to 68% sugar. If you reduce the amount (to under 65%) the gel will be weak or runny. If you increase it (to over 68%) you will have undissolved sugar crystals and it will leave a sandy feeling in the mouth.

The Master Food Preservers are trained volunteers for Penn State Cooperative Extension in Cambria County.

Directions to farm: From Harrisburg take Route 283 East. Exit at Route 341 interchange. Go East on Rt. 341, 1 1/4 mile, turn right onto Kennedy Lane. Go about 1/2 mile- farm is on the right.

New Dairy Exhibit At Philadelphia Zoo

PHILADELPHIA (Philadelphia Co.) — About 10,000 people attended the Grand Opening of the Dairy Corner at the Philadelphia Children's Zoo on Father's Day, June 21.

One segment of the exhibit, sponsored by Dairy Council, Inc., Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association and Breyers, graphically shows children how milk comes from the farm to their kitchen table. There is also a life-sized fiberglass cow which shows her four stomachs and allows kids to try their hand at milking.

During the grand opening, special events were held throughout the day, such as a "Cow Mooing" and a "Name the Baby Calf Contests." Nutrition presentations helped the kids learn about the food groups. Children were also treated that day to free ice cream and to the opportunity of seeing a real cow milked.

Kids got the chance to see a life-sized model of a cow and her four stomachs.

collects Mickey Mouse souvenirs and her hobby is fishkeeping. She loves to cook and has one dog named Boomer.

Onalee enjoys helping out as much as she can on the farm even though she admits she can't be around the animals very much because of her allergies. She does drive the tractors and chase down cows that have escaped in the middle of the night. "I guess when you're a farmer, you never know what the next day will bring."

"You don't necessarily have to do the milking and show cattle to be a dairy princess. The only thing that is important is what you believe in and how you promote it. To me, the dairy industry is important and I am constantly promoting it wherever I go."

Onalee has a quote that she believes makes you a stronger person: "If you have lived well, laughed often, and loved much, consider yourself a success."

PIEROGIES

Dough
1/2 cup butter
1 cup cottage cheese (small curd)

1/2 teaspoon salt
Filling
6 to 8 potates (cooked mashed)

1/4 pound grated cheddar cheese
salt and pepper to taste

Mix ingredients to form dough. Roll out dough on floured top. Use coffee cup to press out circles. Spoon 1 tablespoon potato mixture onto dough circle. Fold in half and dampen edges with water. Press edges together. Boil 1 1/2 quarts water with 1/2 teaspoon salt. Drop pierogies into boiling water for 3 minutes. Sautee pierogies in brown butter with onions. Makes 24 pierogies.

Down Under, Over The Rainbow

BERNVILLE (Berks Co.) — "Most people say there is a pot of gold at the end of a rainbow, but at the end of my rainbow was a dream just out of reach," Sherry Bashore said.

The woman was talking about how she had been one of a handfull of young adults across the nation who were selected to represent the United States in a world-wide agricultural work experience program. She had been chosen to go to Australia.

However, not having the funds to travel made it look as though the once-in-a-lifetime opportunity was going to pass her by.

Working on an Ono-area farm in Lebanon County, her plight caught the attention of the local newspaper and eventually the county agricultural community. The agricultural community raised the money to send Sherry on the trip.

"My dream was to participate in the Work Experience Abroad (WEA) program and go to Australia," Bashore said, adding that the WEA is run by the FFA and rural youth around the world.

"Thanks to the generosity of individuals, groups and businesses of Lebanon County, I was able to follow my rainbow down under.

"In January 1989, I boarded a plane to Australia. Roy and Elva Dalitz and sons were my host family. I stayed with them for three months, working on their dairy farm," Bashore said.

She said her memories of her time in Australia will stay with her forever. She said she came to regard them as family and affectionately address them as parents.

"Milking, painting the dairy, along with other farm chores were some of my jobs. Exchanging notes about farming and other customs with the Aussies also proved to be a challenge everyday," Bashore said.

But too soon the trip was over and she returned to Harpers where she worked for her brother on his dairy farm.

In September, she married Bob Bashore and moved to Berks County. The couple has 90 head of registered Holsteins and call their operation Plenty-Good Holsteins. They farm on about 450 acres in Mohrsville.

With the memories of Australia seemingly tucked away to recall for pleasure, Sherry said she settled into her life and didn't really know if she would ever see the Dalitz family again.

But recently, Bashore got that chance. This time is was her turn to show off the agricultural community.

"Three years later, I found another end to a rainbow. My lost 'parents' were coming to the U.S.A," Bashore said. "They started their six-week stay in America on May 15, by doing an organized five-day country tour around Lake Michigan.

"They rented a car and drove to a trainee, a WEA participant, in Wisconsin. You have to watch out. Australians drive on the wrong side of the road," she said.

She said the Dalitzes also got to experience the unusual late spring weather this year. "They left warm Wisconsin to come to cold Pennsylvania," she said.

About 9 a.m., May 26, the phone rang at the Bashore house. Sherry answered. "'We are in Bernville,' they (Dalitzes) said," Sherry recalled. "I jumped in the car and drove to the service station.

"G'Day and hugs were the greeting. Roy and Elva said it's colder today (in Pennsylvania) than it gets in winter (in Australia). They got settled in and we all enjoyed the afternoon catching up on all the news. We went to my parents' house for a Pennsylvania Dutch feast.

"The meal consisted of pot pie, lettuce with hot bacon dressing, chow-chow, butter carrots and corn. For desert we had a treat — cherry crisp and ice cream. Elva said, 'Cherrys are very expensive, and we don't get them.'"

The Dalitzes are from Deniliquin, New South Wales, Australia. They milk about 160 head of Holsteins. Their farm consists of about 350 acres that are flood irrigated.

Their three sons, Steven, Trevor and Darrin, kept operations running back at the Dalitz farm, while Roy and Elva went on "holiday," the Australian term for vacation.

It was also the couple's 25th anniversary celebration trip.

"Wednesday at noon, we left for Niagra Falls, Canada. We found a motel, two big blocks away from Horseshoe Falls.

"We decided to walk down to the falls and view them by night," Bashore said.

"Well, we got lost. Our sense of direction proved us wrong. Finally, the roaring water was right in front of us. The different colors of lights shining on the water reminded us of a rainbow. They falls were absolutely beautiful — the amount, speed and sound of the water was incredible."

She said that, after the dark walk back up the hill to the motel, they all made a stop for ice cream — sundaes and banana splits.

Bashore said the night went quickly, and the morning light saw them still enthralled with the magnificence of North America's natural beauty . . . of God's gifts.

"After sightseeing on both sides of the falls, we were on our way to the Pennsylvania Grand Canyon. Wow!" Bashore said.

She said that peering out from the overlook at Leonard Harrison State Park and viewing the seemingly endless mountains covered in trees which dropped quickly and deeply down to the Pine Creek was almost surreal.

"The depth of the drop of the mountains to the valley below is really something," she said.

Meanwhile, Roy and Elva became intrigued with the squirrels and other common North American animals.

Then the trip came closer to home. The next stop was near Ephrata.

"'Elva, get your camera. There's a dragon ahead,' I said as we approached Green Dragon Market. The hay and straw auction impressed Roy," Sherry said. "He said, 'If we want hay, we ring up an agent and he'll put us in contact with someone.'"

Elva spent time at the market milling through the offerings of craft articles.

Then the group did another Dutch County tradition — they ate lunch at a smorgasboard.

The pace of the trip slowed as it neared its end. With everyone contentedly full and relaxed, Bob Bashore drove the car back to Bernville, taking all the back roads.

"Cameras were clicking as we passed Amish farmers in the fields," Sherry said.

That evening, Bob and Sherry hosted a 'Get to Know the Aussies' picnic for their families.

Early the next morning, the realization of having to say goodbye was sobering and sad, Sherry said. She said those feelings mixed together strangely with the fresh happy memories of the past days.

The Dalitzes drove away; to Missouri, then on to Yellowstone National Park, Washington state, the Canadian Rockies, and eventually back to Australia.

Meanwhile, Sherry and Robert have settled back to the lives they are making as Pennsylvania dairy farmers, now enriched and fulfilled in the knowledge of the generosity and friendliness of the agricultural community in Lebanon, Pennsylvania and the world.

E-town Plans Chili Cook Off

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Elizabethtown Fair Committee is recruiting contestants for the second annual Chili Cook-off on August 29 to benefit the local Disaster Relief Fund of the Lancaster County Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Individuals are needed to prepare their favorite chili recipe and compete with other entrants while judges determine the winner of the "best" chili among them. The winner from the individual division will then be placed in competition with the winners of the other divisions, which include business, health services, fire stations, and media.

Set up will begin at 11 a.m. within the Elizabethtown Fairgrounds. Each contestant will be provided with a 10'x20' space to set up a stand/display which will be judged on originality, theme presentation, costumes, and neatness. Preparation of chili will be from noon to 3 p.m. and must be done on the premises. Chili will then be judged on its flavor, texture, consistency, aroma, color, and how well the spices have blended and permeated the meat. (No fillers, i.e. beans, rice, flour, etc., may be added until after the chili recipe has been judged.)

Entry fee for the Individual Division is $10. Entry fee for business, health services, fire station, and media divisions is a $100 donation. To receive an entry form and for more information contact Colleen Reiner at (717)367-3810.

Gary Olson, executive director of Flower Growers, and Tom Murphy, president of Flower Growers, arrange displays of flowers for the two-day course.

Floral Expo Stresses Need For Unified Voice

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Participants at the fourth annual Pennsylvania Floral Short Course and Expo, held in Lancaster last week, grappled with the need to present a unified voice for research money on the university level.

"Without money for research, educators are giving up a sizable part of the economy to an unknown entity," Ralph Null, from the University of Mississipi, told growers.

About 360 persons registered for the two-day course that included sessions on design, costs, growth regulators, insect and weed control, water and nutrient management, government management, and worker protection.

The expo included a Trade Fair for growers to keep up to date on what's new in the market.

In one of the sessions, Peter Konjoian, a former professor and now full-time in the family greenhouse business, spoke of the need for small family businesses to continue to provide the back bone of the floral industry.

"Sure the big boys get a lot of attention," he said. "But you can be small and successful."

In his own case, Konjoian said that he has chosen to remain small even though it goes against the grain to remain small among American thinking.

Konjoian shared his passion for growing "not as a job but as a way of life."

Retailing, he said, is always changing. "Some say you must specialize," he said. "Our specialty is quality so we grow everything."

Konjoian said the concept of self service in bedding plants continues, but scheduling is everything to have a continual supply of plants in different stages.

He advised growers to learn a lesson from grocery stores and put the plants they sell the most in the back of the store so that customers are enticed to buy other plants while going to pick up the items they came to buy.

Ice Cream Celebration On The Square

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The "Pennsylvanians Scream for Ice Cream" campaign is coming to the city of Scranton on Thursday, July 16, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Courthouse Square. "Ice Cream Celebrationn on the Square" is part of National Ice Cream Month festivities designed to recognize and promote Pennsylvania's ice cream industry.

Special events for the day include an ice cream sundae bar, tin can ice cream making for children, ice cream and novelty sampling and an ice cream making demonstration. A live band, "Diehard," will also be on hand to entertain the crowd. Similar activities will be held in Bland's Park in Tipton, Harrisburg's Capitol Steps, and the Erie Zoo.

Pennsylvania is the second largest producer of ice cream in the nation producing 74 million gallons in 1991. The state is also a large producer of ice milk and milk sherbet producing 22.9 million gallons and 2.8 million gallons, respectively. Ice cream has also been recognized as a nutritious treat, providing protein, calcium, and riboflavin.

This event is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program along with Blue Ribbon Dairy, Farmers' Cooperative Dairy, Hillside Farms, Montdale Dairy, and Shadowbrook Dairy.

Further information about the festival is available by calling the PDPP office at (717)787-6903.

Amusing Ice Cream Festival

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — During July Ice Cream Month and throughout the year, we all scream for ice cream. Bland's Park in Tipton, just outside of Altoona, will be screaming for ice cream on Tuesday, July 14, when statewide Ice Cream Month celebrations begin with "An Amusing Ice Cream Festival."

From 12 to 4 p.m., visitors can stop at various stations located in the park and sample different varieties of ice cream made available by local manufacturers. Special events will include an ice crem making demonstration, tin can ice cream making for kids, ice cream, and novelty sampling and a sundae bar for hungry park visitors.

This event will kick off the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program's statewide promotion of National Ice Cream Month, designed to promote Pennsylvania ice cream. Similar festivals will be held in Scranton's Courthouse Square, Harrisburg's Capitol Steps, and the Erie Zoo.

Pennsylvaina is the second largest producer of ice cream in the nation producing 74 million gallons in 1991. The state is also a large producer of ice milk and milk sherbert producing 22.9 million gallons and 2.8 million gallons, respectively.

The event is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program along with Galliker Dairy, McMahon's Dairy, Ritchey's Dairy, Sani-Dairy, and Valley Farms.

Further information is available by calling the PDPP office at (717)787-6903.

Chester Holds Summer Beef Show

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — Twenty-three steers were exhibited by seventeen 4-H members at the annual Chester County 4-H Summer Steer Show at Devereux Farms, Glenmoore. This was the first show of the season for the 4-H members and, according to judge Ned Sayre, purebred Angus breeder in Maryland, the members had their steers in top condition.

Champion steer was exhibited by Jennifer Dunleavy of Glenmoore. The steer was a purebred Angus bred by John Hunt of Spring City. The reserve champion steer, a Maine-Anjou, Limousin cross, was exhibited by Matt McAllister of Spring City.

In the showmanship competition, Jennifer Dunleavy again won all honors in the Senior Division. Nathan Howe of Downington was named Champion in the Junior Division and Phill McAllister of Spring City won the First Year Division.

4-H teens, 4-H leaders, and the Mexico youth conducted "Kid's World" programs at the Fairfield Community Building, June 30; at the South Mountain Fairgrounds, July 1; and at the East Berlin Community Center, July 2. Recreation, crafts, leadership skills, a snack, and a special Mexico presentation were highlighted at each of the "Kid's World" programs.

Adams County teens and adults working with the "Kid's World" community programs include Maria Noel, New Oxford; Lynda Glassmyer, Gettysburg; Jayne Hess, Gettysburg; Tricia and Tina Powell, Gettysburg; Peggy Tyson, New Oxford; Carol Rex, Biglerville; Jared Tyson and Darlene Resh of the Adams County Extension Office.

The 4-H Clubs of Adams County Inc., The Adams County Rarig Memorial Fund, Adams 4-H Senate (4-H teen group), The Pennsylvania State University, University of Monterrey, Mexico, and The Kellogg Foundation are cosponsoring this international exchange experience.

Getting Ready For County

The June meeting of the Boots & Saddles 4-H Club was held at the home of member Erin Hess of Lititz.

Thirty-four members were in attendance along with many guests. The meeting was called to order by president Eileen Holm, pledges were given by Jennifer Goodman and Emily Hill, and the secretary and treasurer reports were given by Lori Harnish and Becky Preiss.

Demonstrations on grooming & showmanship hints and leg wraps were given by Lori and Sharon Harnish, Becky Preiss, and Erin Hess with the help of Hi Flashy Smoke. The grooming hints were to help prepare for the qualifying shows, at which time they must show in grooming and showmanship to qualify for the right to show at county roundup on July 18. The "leg wraps" covered the different kinds and how to apply them for both shipping and emergency wound care.

Animal welfare was also discussed and refreshments were served. For more information on the club, call (717) 569-3068 and ask for Rose.

Iowa Exchange

Adams County 4-H teens and adults are involved in a 4-H cultural exchange program with 4-H teens and adults from Linn County, Iowa.

The 4-H teen and adult leaders spend the week of June 19-27 in 4-H host families in the Cedar Rapids area of Iowa.

The basic design of the 4-H cultural exchange program is to acquaint youth from both states with the differences and similarities between the cultures of two geographic areas of the United States. Each teen will have his or her own host family to live, work, and explore with.

This is the second and final stage of the program between Adams and Linn Counties. In 1991, Adams County 4-H families hosted 4-H teens and adults from Linn County for a week. The 4-H provided a similar cultural hosting experience for the Iowa 4-H teens and adults.

While living with the host families in Iowa, the club toured various industrial, agricultural, and tourist spots in the area. Specific areas include Amana Colonies, Amana Refrigeration, Quaker Oats, Penford, Linn County Farms, John Deere, Peavey Grain Terminal, Mississippi River, and Ertle Toy Factory.

Those participating in the 1992 4-H Exchange are Karen King, York Springs; Joy Hess, Gettysburg; Amy and Emily Miller, New Oxford; Karen Miller, Gettysburg; Debbie Wilkinson, Gettysburg; Toni Washburn, East Berlin; Ben Stine, East Berlin; Laura and Curtis Mayer, New Oxford; Abe and Sadie Bucher, New Oxford; Angela and Laura Giardullo, York Springs; Rebecca and Ashley Brown, New Oxford; Heidi Dahlhammer, Wellsville; Kim Funt, Arendtsville; Marci James, Gettysburg; Kelly Rockafellow, Littlestown; Sonja Smith, Gettysburg; Mary Beth Stahl, New Oxford; Irene Yelovich, Orrtanna; Travis Green, Gettysburg; Matt and Mike Linebaugh, New Oxford; Dan Ludwig, Gettysburg; Beau Ramsburg, Gettysburg; Chris Snyder, New Oxford; Mark Wessel, Hanover; Rich Williams, New Oxford; Ronnie Young, Biglerville; Chaperones - Ina and Bob Bucher, New Oxford; Joyce and Ron Funt, Arendtsville; Sharon Scamack, Gettysburg; and Jared Tyson, County 4-H agent.

D. L. SINGLETARY
PSU Dept. of Veterinary Science

It is normal for a small percentage of a poultry flock to die between one and two weeks of age from what is commonly known as starve-outs.

These chicks or poults are thin, dehydrated and have no feed in the intestinal tract (crop/gizzard particularly). Often only litter-like material is found in the gizzard. However, caution is needed not to think that all mortality during this period are starve-outs.

The reason is that a variety of viruses can infect young chicks or poults at this young age producing health problems which look very similar to starve-outs.

The best known of these viral enteric conditions is bluecomb disease of turkeys. The disease is also known as mud fever, transmissible enteritis, infectious enteritis or coronaviral enteritis. It can cause quite high mortality.

The rest of this article will discuss other viral enteric infections particularly as they pertain to turkey poults. However, one should know that these viruses, particularly rotavirus, affect a wide variety of avian species including chickens, pheasants, pigeons, ducks, guinea fowl and even pet birds.

These viral enteric infections are a complex problem as often usually more than one disease agent is involved in the outbreak.

Rotavirus is the one typically identified. However, other viruses such as astrovirus, enterovirus, parvovirus and calicivirus have also been reported in causing disease problems in young turkey poults.

A variety of secondary disease agents such as bacteria, mold (crop mycosis) and organisms such as cryptosporidia usually complicate the overall disease picture.

These viral infections in turkey poults have a variety of names. The most popular is poult enteritis.

Other names include: turkey viral enteritis, poult stunting and runting, poult malabsorption syndrome or infectious enteritis. Sometimes it is simply called rotavirus infection.

These viral enteric outbreaks have a sudden onset, are highly infectious and the droppings will contain large quantities of the virus. The virus-containing droppings are a particular problem for turkey producers that have multi-age flocks on the farm and/or have multi-age brooding in the same building.

Because the droppings (diarrhea) are so sticky, they are easily carried from place to place (pen to pen, building to building, farm to farm). Also, birds may continue to pass droppings containing virus long after the acute disease is over.

These disease agents are environmental; that is, the young bird becomes infected by exposure to a fecal contaminated environment. The disease spreads rapidly through a flock and from flock to flock on the same farm.

The viruses causing these problems are not egg transmitted; thus, the young are not infected by the breeder hen.

The symptoms are quite variable. They may be very mild (the producer may not even be aware that the flock is infected) or very severe (with mortality).

Most outbreaks occur in birds less than 4 weeks of age, but adult birds, if not infected when young, can experience an outbreak.

Any or all of the following symptoms may be seen: dehydration, watery droppings with pasting of the vent and caking on the feet and toes, vent picking, litter eating, poor weight (thin birds), birds seeking a source of heat and huddling together with the suffocation of some chicks.

While most of the flock is sick, fortunately, mortality is generally low — less than 4 to 7 percent.

The next article will describe the economic effects, lesions, diagnosis and prevention and treatment of these viral intestinal infections.

Everyday Effort Key To Championship

HOLLINS, Va. — Jim Funk, the winner here of Livestock Marketing Association's 1992 World Livestock Auctioneer Championship, credits his attitude with bringing him the title.

"Every day I'm behind the mike I'm competing for the world championship — I wanted it so bad," said Funk, of Edgewood, Iowa. Funk won the 29th annual WLAC in competition at the Roanoke-Hollins Stockyard. He said he wanted to salute the "great people" who sponsored him at the Spring Grove Livestock Exchange, Spring Grove, Minn.

The reserve world champion is Greg Griffeth, Oklahoma City, and the runner-up world champion is Lex Madden, Torrington, Wyo.

Last year, in just his first time in the contest, Griffeth finished third. After his second place finish this year, there's only one title left to win. He said, "I'll be back."

Griffeth was sponsored by Oklahoma National Stockyards Co., Stockman-Oklahoma Livestock, Inc., and Oklahoma Livestock Order Buyers, all of Oklahoma City and Apache Auction Market, Apache, Okla.

Beef Industry Boards Quality Management Bandwagon

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. — The Beef Quality Assurance Program expanded its focus at a Beef Quality-Assurance State Coordinators Seminar in Memphis, Tenn.

Speakers from Federal Express, the 1990 winner of the prestigious Malcom Baldrige Quality Award, joined beef industry experts to discuss ways to create a total qualtiy management environment within the beef industry. A total of 27 of the 37 states participating in NCA's beef quality-assurance program sent producers and staff to the seminar.

All the speakers talked of the importance of aligning customer needs with supplier services and providing top-notch service that not only meets customer expectations but exceeds them.

Cattlemen are interested in quality programs because the cattle industry is attempting to streamline its efficiency in production in order to provide a more consistent end-product to retailers and consumers at a lower price as a means of increasing market share.

NCA Quality Assurance Task Force Chairman Mike Bowles said, "The beef industry must head toward a total quality management program because we have market share and consumer perception of our product at stake."

Price, NCA director of economics Chuck Lambert told those attending, is a big part of beef's perception problem.

"Historically, the beef industry has focused on price and production. 'Topping the market' and receivng the 'high dollar for the day' surely have their roots in bragging rights in some prehistoric stockyards coffee ship," Lamber told seminar attendees. He said the beef industry has focused on achieving high prices and high production levels and hoped high profits would follow. That doesn't necessarily happen, Lambert said, because too often high production costs have eroded margins.

An NCA analysis of cattle operations nationwide conducted using standardized performance analysis found that the average cattleman has a pretax income per breeding cow of only $7.58, while the range is a loss of $522.21 to a return of $192.15.

"Clearly, there is room for improvement," Lambert said.

Dr. Gary Smith, head of animal science at Colorado State University and project leader for the national beef quality audit, said the audit demonstrated that there is plenty of room for cattlemen to improve the bottom line. The audit found that cattlemen give up an average $279.82 per head in lost opportunities throughout the production chain.

The principal opportunities for improving margins come from reducing excessive external fat, decreasing excessive seam fat, improving overall cutability and improving understanding of the value of closer-trimmed product, the audit found. These factors combined account for industry-wide losses of $219.25 per head of fed cattle, Smith said. Other areas where there is room for improvement include enhancing taste, improving management efficiency and controlling weights.

"We can recoup these losses if all segements of the industry work together with common goals in mind," Smith said.

Dr. Bill Mies, a cattle-feeding specialist with Texas A&M University, elaborated on what cattlemen must do to achieve better bottom-line results.

"We are entering into a new era in the beef industry. In the past we were very regionalized and segmented by the type of production we did. We must understand in order to survive as any segment, we've got to think about the total quality of the product throughout the entire system. In other words, the cow-calf man must be aware of what quality means to a feedyard operator, or the packer, the retailer and our ultimate customer, the consumer," Mies said. "Even though we may do different jobs, we are one industry, producing one product, and we must all take responsiblity for that product."

Mies also presented 14 points developed by total quality management guru Dr. W. Edwards Deming and explained how they could be adapted for the beef cattle industry.

Poland Ag Leaders Visit Solanco H.S.

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — After undergoing a major government reform, the Polish Ministry of Agriculture and Food Economy intends to revitalize their agricultural technical school programs to prepare youth for the new agricultural industry in Poland.

Although this change is occurring many, many miles away, the agricultural program at Solanco High School and its instructors are helping to "shape" the agricultural reform in Poland.

In an interest to set up support services such as FFA, 4-H, extension programs, and others, the Polish Ministry of Agriculture asked Penn State agriculture officials in February- 1991 to visit Poland and assess their vo-ag schools.

Extension service teams (ES-USDA) worked in Poland from June to December 1991, and four additional teams visited from January to June 1992, including several teams from Penn State.

In February and March 1991, a Penn State team visited a group of schools in Poland and toured the country.

"Their school system was not as bad as they thought," said ZoAnn Parker, extension agent for Lancaster County from the Penn State College of Agriculture, who participated on the assessment team.

Parker said the team submitted a report explaining the proper linkages between high schools and extension services, and between high schools and universities pertaining to vocational-agricultural studies.

"They (in Poland) currently have no youth development," said Parker, referring to organizations such as FFA, 4-H, etc. However, they are interested in establishing these services, she said.

After receiving several reports from the Penn State and other ES-USDA teams assessing their current program, agricultural officials from Poland recently visited the United States to learn more about ag programs here and how an agricultural program can fit into a comprehensive high school program. With the reform, Parker said she sees the thrust of their education to be aimed at youth education, where the much-needed changes will be learned and will occur more readily.

During their month-long visit, the Polish ag leaders spent two weeks in Alabama and two weeks in Pennsylvania observing various agricultural programs and extension services and how they work together to complement each other.

Selected as a visitation site on the Pennsylvania tour was the Solanco High School ag program. According to Parker, Solanco was selected for its "extremely excellent program" as compared to others in the state. Parker added that she wanted the visitors to see the lessons and record-keeping process from Dr. Arba Henry's program. Henry is the department chairman for the agricultural department at Solanco.

Parker said the Polish agricultural leaders also needed to observe and ask questions about the traditional high school setting here, because Poland is interested in placing agricultural studies back into the traditional high school setting. Currently, Poland operates its schools on a career track where students are placed in schools based on their career choice.

Penn State representatives and Polish ag leaders visited Solanco High School on two occasions last month. Jay Irwin, former county extension director for Lancaster County, and ZoAnn Parker brought with them Jozef Flaga, the director of the Agricultural Advisory Center in Boguchwala and Jozefa Wilczak, an extension specialist at Boguchwala. The group discussed with Henry the importance of record-keeping and how to interpret records, teach quality control, develop budgets, and how the ag program at Solanco operates within the boundaries of a traditional high school.

On May 26, Parker returned with Donald Evans, assistant dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences at Penn State, along with Dr. Anna Potok, former national vice minister of agriculture and food economy until 1991; Dr. Barbara Szablewska, director of extension at Leszno; Mr. Leszek Janusz, a translator; and Jozefa Wilczak returned again as well. This group met with Henry and thoroughly discussed agricultural programs at the high school, middle school, and elementary school levels and adult education classes. As a result, they walked away with a better understanding of how the ag program fits into the comprehensive school system.

They also talked about the importance of extension services and youth development services and the cooperation between the schools and state programs.

According to Parker, the guests from Poland gained an increasingly better understanding of the various ag programs in the month they were here.

"They need to take an adaptation of our programs to fit into their present school system," she said.

Mexico Imposes New Inspection Procedures For Meat Imports

DENVER (Colo.) — The Mexico City office of the U.S. Meat Export Federation (USMEF) reports that the Mexican government has arbitarily imposed border inspection procedures for all meat entering the country. The new requirements are for boxed and carcass beef, but apperently do not apply to variety meats or processed meats.

The new procedures require that a sample of each product coming into Mexico be tested by border authorities before being allowed into the country. While the testing was initially to be done in Cuernavaca, near Mexico City; Mexican authorities under pressure from the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) have said that the tests will now be conducted at the border. They have also promised that turnaround time will be no more than 10 hours. It is still unclear what Mexican authorities will be testing for.

Phil Seng, USMEF president, expressed concern but sought to put the issue in perspective.

"Although abrupt deviations from standard procedures undermine the confidence of traders on both sides of the border, we have encountered and solved similar problems in the past. The U.S. meat industry must take a long-term view of trade with Mexico, considering the tremendous gains in the Mexican market to date, as well as the potential for future sales to Mexico."

The new procedures came as a surprise to U.S. government and industry officials. The change was not reported to U.S. authorities by the Mexican government 45 days in advance, as is the procedure agreed to by both parties when one or the other closes the border. Mexican officials maintain that such notification was unnecessary since the border was not actually closed.

Exporters had complained of a shortage of cold storage facilities at the border since the new procedures began. As a result, the required testing has been suspended for the week of June 22 in order to lessen the backlog of product while the Mexican government moves testing equipment to the border.

"We are in constant contact with the U.S. Trade Representative and the U.S. Department of Agriculture," said Homero Recio, USMEF Western Hemisphere Director. "We are working closely with them to solve the problem and to restore smooth flow of product into Mexico."

Recio traveled to the border town of Laredo to provide industry input at meetings scheduled later between Federal Safety & Inspection Service (FSIS) personnel and Mexican government officials.

Also on the inspection front, Mexican government officials informed the U.S. Embassy in Mexico on Wednesday, that as of Aug. 15, they will inspect the plants from all countries that export meat products to Mexico. It is not known at this time what the standards for approval will be. USMEF has taken the position, with the support of FSIS, that all federally-approved U.S. establishments be eligible for inspection.

Mexico was the U.S.' fastest growing market in 1991, with purchases of U.S. beef, pork and lamb worth $661 million, double those of 1990 export levels.

Poultry Construction Remains Strong

GEORGETOWN, DEl. — As Delmarva's poultry industry continues to grow, the number of poultry houses being built to meet the increased demand for Delmarva's high quality chickens also continues to increase.

According to information compiled by Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc. (DPI), the trade association for the Peninsula's more than one-billion-dollar-a-year poultry industry, 161 new broiler houses were put into use on Delmarva last year. Sixty-two houses were under construction at the end of the year, and 13 houses had been financed but construction had not begun.

The average capacity of these 236 new houses is 26,500 birds. There were 74 older houses taken out of production during the period due to retirements, natural disasters, or obsolescence. These new houses averaged nearly two times the size of the older houses being replaced.

The construction of new poultry houses contributes significant dollars to the local economy. Each new house, fully equipped, costs growers approximately $100,000. This means, peninsula-wide, that growers invested $23,600,000.

These dollars are spent throughout Delmarva by the building contractors, their employees, and the suppliers of building materials and equipment. State and local governments benefit from the tax dollars generated by the new houses.

While many businesses have been reducing spending and growing smaller in recent months because of poor economic conditions, Delmarva's poultry growers have continued to invest locally, an indication of the stability and overall good financial health of the industry.

"As with any type of business, it is necessary to replace equipment and facilities when they become obsolete," said DPI President Dr. G. Thomas Holder. "Many of the houses taken out of production did not meet the standards needed to be efficient in today's chicken industry, and the producers decided not to spend the money necessary to bring them up to date."

Sussex County, Delaware, the top broiler-producing county in the United States, was the leader on Delmarva in new house construction, with 89 of the new houses, 38 percent of the total. Trailing Sussex were Caroline County, Maryland with 37 houses; Dorchester, Md., 24; Kent, Del., 21; Wicomico, Md., 16; Somerset and Worchester, Md. with 15 each; Accomac, Virginia, 12; Talbot, Md., 4; and Queen Anne's, Md., 3.

Last year, Delmarva growers produced 536,900,000 broiler chickens, about 10 percent of America's total, making the Peninsula the fourth largest broiler production area in the United States. This increase of approximately four percent from the previous year was necessary to meet rising consumer demand for chicken in the northeast United States and in the growing export markets served by Delmarva's eight poultry companies.

"To keep up with the increasing consumption of Delmarva chickens, new house construction is essential," Dr. Holder said. "The increased capacity last year allowed Delmarva to do that."

Belt Feeder For New, Existing Bunks

ATKINSON, Wis. — Starline Dealers call their new belt feeder Feed-Trak™.

The new unit features the STARglider™ V-Plow with a low-friction Tuff-glide polyethylene base that provides a flat, smooth belt surface on which the plow operates.

The V-Plow design reduces feed "carrythrough" during the switching process and the bett wiper design features superior belt cleaning.

The most unique feature of this new Starline Feed-Trak unit is its Cannon Ball® track and trolley system. The technology for this smooth-running, long-lasting track and trolley system originally used on Cannon Ball sliding door hardware.

By adapting this technology to a belt feeder, Starline engineers were able to achieve quieter operation and more power from less horsepower, thanks to the extremely smooth, quiet operation of the Cannon Ball Delrin® trolleys.

A concave belt carries feed undisturbed at 260 feet per minute. The tough, 14 inches wide, 1/8 inch thick, polyester belt with PVC coating and durable stainless steel industrial splice flexes even in subzero weather for dependable, year-round performance.

A unique feature of this new Starline Feed-Trak unit is its Cannon Ball® track and trolley system. The technology for this smooth-running, long-lasting track and trolley system was originally used on Cannon Ball sliding door hardware.

Choice of side-to-side switching includes manual operation or diverter control for automatic switching or electrical diverter control with solenoids. The diverter is designed for minimum service with no greasing and no linkage adjustments.

For complete details about this new belt feeder, see your Starline Dealer or write for literature to J-Star Industries, Inc., 801 Janesville Avenue, Fort Atkinson, WI 53538, (414)563-5521.

Duane Hernley, right, is shown receiving a gift from Robert Ratliff, acknowledging his participation in the meeting.

Hernley Elected To Dealer Panel

ATLANTA, Ga. — Duane Hernley, president of Hernley's Farm Equipement, Inc., Elizabethtown, recently attended the ACGO/Deutz-Allis National Dealer Panel meeting held here according to Robert J. Ratliff, AGCO president and CEO.

The National Dealer Panel consists of nine elected panelists, one from each U.S. sales region and one from each Canadian region. Members are elected by their peers and meet with the company's senior management twice a year to discuss areas of mutual interest and concern. Each member serves a two-year term.

"Our dealers are the foundation of this company and our most valuable resource," said Ratliff. "They provide AGCO with infomration on trends in the marketplace, feedback on product performance, and also provide valuable input from our customers. Election to this elite dealer panel speaks highly of Duane Hernley, since Deutz-Allis has over 650 dealers in North America from which this group is choosen."

Aerotech Fans Top Rated

LANSING, Mich. — The 1992 Wisconsin Farm Electric Council's list of recommended fans ranked Aerotech, Inc., fans as the best overall performers in the 48-, [illegible] and 24-inch classes for the [illegible]ond consecutive year, again suggesting large potential savings [illegible] producers.

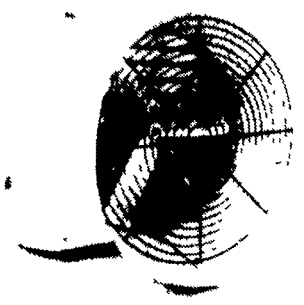
For example, compared to the [illegible]-rated 48-inch Aerotech [illegible]dvantage fan, the average fan [illegible]sted would use 24 percent more electricity to move the same amount of air. At $0.10/KW-hr and 5,000 hours of operation per year, each Aerotech fan would save $1,350 during a 10-year period.

The tests, conducted by the Bioenvironmental and Structural Systems (BESS) Lab at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, measured airflow and efficiency under typical operating conditions. Shutters and guards were in place. And the fans were mounted in commercially available housings and operated under 0.04 inch of static pressure.

"We are extremely pleased that for the second straight year we have beaten all others in these independent tests," said Aerotech President Robert Mitchell. "Our hard work and continuing efforts to improve our products as paid off."

The 1-horsepower, 48-inch Aerotech fans delivered both the highest airflow, 23,800 cubic feet per minute (CFM), and the best efficiency, 21.3 CFM/watt, of any fans in their class.

In addition, the [illegible]-horsepower, 48-inch Aer[illegible]ech fan turned in the highest [illegible]rall airflow performance, 26,300 CFM, while still delivering better efficiency, 17.5 CFM/watt, than many of the lower-performing fans in its class.



For the second straight year, Aerotech had the top-rated fans in the 24-, 36-, and 48-inch categories in independent testing done by BESS Lab at the University of Illinois. Shown is the Aerotech Advantage fan, which led its class.

Among the 36-inch fans, Aerotech's ½ -horsepower fan delivered both the highest airflow, 12,000 CFM, and the highest efficiency, 19.4 CFM/watt.

And, in the 24-inch fan class, Aerotech had the only fan that qualified for the recommended list. The ⅓ -horsepower Aerotech fan moved 6,250 CFM of air at an efficiency of 15.6 CFM/watt.

Pa. Apple Producers Continue Board

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania apple producers approved the referendum to continue the existence of the Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Board (PAMB) by a vote of 98 to 64.

An impartial teller committee counted the ballots in Harrisburg on June 30. A simple majority among the state's apple growers with 500 or more trees was all the referendum needed to pass.

The oldest of the state's commodity programs, the Apple Marketing Program began under the Pennsylvania Agricultural Commodities Marketing Act (PACMA) or 1968. An amendment in 1987 gave apple growers additional authority to supervise thier own programs, but they all require periodic reviews. The referendum's approval continues the program for another five years.

The Apple Markeing Board, which directs the program's agenda and activities, is comprised of ten members and a staff of one. Nine grower members plus the State Secretary of Agriculture or designee now represent 325 apple producers participating in the program.

"The Apple Marketing Program is a good example of the way growers take control of their program,",said State Secreatry of Agricultrue Boyd E. Wolff. "I was delighted to hear that the state's apple producers voted to continue their promotional marketing prgorams."

The PAMB has worked hard to improve the market for Pennsylvania apples and apple products in an increasingly competitive environment. Their merchandising programs have won awards for quality and been effective in getting shelf space for apples during critical times of the year.

Since the continued success of apple growers depends on aggressive marketing, the board cooperates with other apple marketing programs in the East to boost sales. They have also worked very hard through some difficult times to ensure consumers have confidence in buying apples and apple products.

The Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Program just completed its most successful promotion year. From the Blue Ribbon Apple Pie Contest in January to the Pennsylvania Apple Season Promotion last fall, the program reinforced a positive attitude by retailers and consumers toward Pennsylvania apples.

Last year the Apple Marketing Program expanded its merchandising program to generate increased awareness of Pennsylvania apples among consumers. With the theme, "The Special Flavor of Pennsylvania Apple Season," the program promoted the freshness and taste of Pennsylvania-grown apples.

Product Sales Show Nearly 12 Percent Growth

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Total sales of U.S. animal health products were reported at more than $2.2 billion in 1991, representing an approximate 12 percent increase from the 1990 figure of $2.0 billion. These figures represent the results of the Animal Health Institute's 1991 Domestic Net Sales Survey.

This year, these U.S. totals have been adjusted to reflect the removal of nutritional sales from the feed additive category, and also from total U.S. sales. The nutritional category was removed because AHI members' sales represent only a friction of the total U.S. sales in this category, making completely accurate projections to the U.S. universe increasingly difficult.

AHI represents manufacturers of animal health products - the pharmaceuticals, vaccines, and feed additives used in modern food production, and the medicines that keep pets healthy. AHI conducts its sales survey annually. Sales are reported in three major product categories - pharmaceuticals, biologicals, and feed additives. Each of these is broken down into several subcategories.

Sales totals for the United States are based on projections made by AHI's Market Research Committee using sales data collected from the association's member companies by independent accountant Pauline Pollick. Sales are for products priced at the manufacturer's level.

A summary of the sales data in the three major product categories follows:

• FEED ADDITIVES: This category includes sales for all feed additives -- with the exception of nutritionals -- used in livestock and poultry production, including those used to control or prevent disease, and enhance growth or improve feed efficiency. This category is broken out into two subcategories: antibacterials and "all other."

Feed additive sales increased approximately 13 percent in 1991 with projected sales of more than $595.4 million. 1990 sales were projected at $528.6 million. Sales in the antibacterials subcategory were up 13 percent while the increase in the "all other" subcategory was approximately 11 percent.

• PHARMACEUTICALS: This product category covers the sales of dosage from medicines used in disease prevention and treatment programs for both food-producing animals and pets. In the AHI survey, pharmaceuticals are broken out in two subcategories: antimicrobials and "all other."

The antimicrobials subcategory covers those pharmaceuticals which include an antibacterial alone or in combination with other drugs.

Pharmaceuticals sales increased by nearly 11 percent in 1991. Projected sales in this category for 1991 were nearly $1.3 billion and the 1990 projection was $1.2 billion. Sales in the antimicrobials subcategory increased approximately 7 percent while an increase of approximately 12 percent was projected in the "all others" subcategory.

BIOLOGICALS: This product category covers the sales of products used to create immunity to disease in both livestock and pets. Biologicals include vaccines, bacterins and AHI antitoxins licensed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service. This category is divided into five subcategories which reflect a product's use: livestock; poultry; small animals; equine; and rabies.

Sales in this category increased approximately 12 percent in 1991 with projected sales of nearly $347 million. In 1990, this projection was $310 million. Changes in each subcategory are as follows:

Livestock: Increased by approximately 16 percent

Poultry: Increased by approximately 4 percent

Small Animals: Increased by approximately 7 percent

Rabies: Increased by approximately 21 percent

Equine: Increased by approximately 9 percent

Ag Advocates Promote Agriculture

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — While other industries have cut back in response to the recession, agriculture has continued to grow. In the upcoming academic year, a group of Penn State students will work to inform the public about opportunities in the nation's number-one industry.

Sixteen undergraduates in the College of Agricultural Sciences have been chosen as ag advocates. They will support the college's efforts to enhance the image of agriculture and recruit highly qualified students. They also will help alumni and friends stay in touch with college programs and developments.

"More agricultural scientists are needed to improve food and fiber production in the United States," said Dr. Marianne Houser, instructor in agricultural education and adviser for the program.

"Students in the College of Agricultural Sciences receive training in diverse areas such as horticulture, veterinary science, and environmental resource management," she said. "Graduates have excellent career opportunities."

The 1992-93 ag advocates come from both urban and rural areas of Pennsylvania and represent several academic departments in the College of Agricultural Sciences. They are:

- Tammy Balthaser of Bernville, a senior majoring in agricultural business management
- Catherine Dawson of Allentown, a sophomore majoring in environmental resource management
- Aimee Eopechino of Hanover, a sophomore majoring in food science
- Michael Gainer of Erie, a freshman majoring in agricultural science
- Antoinette Gomez of Oxford, a sophomore majoring in poultry science
- Lynette Goodling of Selinsgrove, a junior majoring in dairy and animal science
- Barbra Hart of Aliquippa, a sophomore majoring in animal bioscience
- Rick Hissong of Mercersburg, a junior majoring in agricultural systems management and technology
- Jennifer Karlip of Lancaster, a junior majoring in forest products marketing
- Daniel Kirk of Collingdale, a senior majoring in plant science
- David Lentz of Lebanon, a junior majoring in dairy production
- Jeffrey Ozarski of Downingtown, a junior majoring in environmental resource management
- Terri Packard of Troy, a junior majoring in dairy and animal science
- Cherice Parker of Philadelphia, a junior majoring in agricultural economics and rural sociology
- Holly Shoener of Pine Grove, a junior majoring in agricultural and biological engineering
- Rebecca Sonnen of Richland, a junior majoring in agricultural science.

Ag advocates are selected on the basis of high academic achievement, interviews, and faculty recommendations. Dena Lamartine F. Hood initiated the program in the fall of 1988.

Auction To Offer Grading Tips

ALLENTOWN (Lehigh Co.) — Vegetable and fruit growers supplying produce auctions can pick up grading tips at a miniworkshop on the sales floor of the Kutztown Produce Auction on Thursday, July 16, from 8:30 a.m.-9:30 a.m.

Presenter will be Thomas V. Yawman, federal supervisor for the Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Inspection Service serving Pennsylvania.

Proper grading and sizing helps the farmer earn the highest price and best reputation among wholesale buyers. That's no secret. The mystery here is what exactly to pack, what constitutes a first, second, and an off-grade among common vegetables and fruits.

For the workshop, Yawman will sort several packs of local vegetables and comment on the grading. He will provide guidelines on grading four top produce items — tomatoes, peppers, sweet corn, and cucumbers — plus answer questions from growers.

In his position, Yawman oversees the staff who inspect fruits and vegetables for grade verification throughout Pennsylvania. He also conducts intensive training for inspectors and performs inspections as requested by buyers. Yawman is with USDA and is based in the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture building in Harrisburg.

The miniwworkshop is free and will be followed by the regular sale of fresh produce at 9:30 a.m. The Kutztown Produce Auction is on Oakhaven Road, just west of Kutztown and south of Rt. 222.

Call Jeff Patton, extension marketing agent, at the Lehigh County Cooperative Extension office at (215) 391-9840 for more information and directions.

Select EPDs For Optimum Birth, Weaning, Yearling Weights

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Expected Progeny Differences (EPDs) can be used to help select a number of important traits in cattle, but can be especially beneficial to select optimum birth, weaning, and yearling weights for your herd.

Information used to calculate an animal's EPDs includes performance data from individual and relatives such as parents, siblings, other close relatives and most importantly, progeny. Performance information of the animal's contemporaries is also used to help calculate EPDs.

Dr. John Hough, education and reaserch director for the American Polled Hereford Association, said that while birth and weaning weights are important for cattlemen, EPD selection should be based on many traits. Some breeds furnish accuracy ratings of EPDs to help in your selection for optimum, economical traits.

"Before you begin using any EPDs, remember you cannot compare open breed's EPDs with those of another," Hough said. "EPDs can only be compared within a single breed."

Birth weight is important because of its relationship to calving ease. It is measured by the differences in birth weights of calves born within a contemporary group.

"For example, a sire with a birth weight EPD of +3.0 pounds will generally produce heavier calves at birth, as compared to a bull with an EPD of -2.0 pounds," Hough said.

Extra weight at weaning can be achieved by selecting sires with higher weaning weight EPDs. If you compare a sire with a weaning weight EPD of +12.0 pounds to a sire with an EPD of -10.0 pounds, you should expect calves on the average to be 22.0 pounds heavier at weaning from the first bull when out of comparable cows. This same calculation can also be used for yearling weight or any other EPDs. There will be however, variations between individuals within a calf crop.

"Before selecting a trait covered by EPDs, keep your long-term goals in mind and consider the environmental and management conditions on your place," Hough said.

"Selecting for the whole animal to fit your needs is more important than selecting for one trait, or even depending solely upon EPDs. Visual appraisal of all traits such as soundness of feet, legs, or muscling should be considered along with other factors such as breeding soundness exams on bulls when available," Hough said.

Hough says cattle operations can profit by understanding EPDs. EPDs are an additional management tool that can assist with visula selection and the animal's own performance data to help measure the genetic potential of breeding stock.

Beef Council Reports On Mid-Year Meeting

PHILADELPHIA — Harry Stambaugh of Green Park represented the Pennsylvania Beef Council at the U.S. Meat Export Federation's (USMEF) board of directors meeting and foreign buyers conference in Philadelphia recently. The event attracted nearly 400 board members, foreign buyers, guests, and news media representatives.

"USMEF forecasts that U.S. beef, veal, pork, lamb and variety meat exports will reach $5.8-7.1 billion ($4.1-5.36 billion for beef and $1.7 billion for pork) by the year 2000. This poses tremendous opportunity for growth," said Stambaugh.

In 1991, exports contributed an additional $1.78 per hundred (85.23 per head) to the price of fed cattle and an additional $1.78 per hundred weight to the price of market hogs. These calculations are based on current levels of production and consumption in the U.S.

According to Stambaugh, the purpose of the USMEF mid-year board of directors meeting was to review current events in international trade and make foreign market development policy decisions.

The results of a study projecting the impact of U.S. beef and pork exports on the U.S. industry through the year 2000, given varying growth scenarios, were released. The study showed that if U.S. beef exports triple between 1991 and the year 2000, the amount of beef exported will be equal to 13.3 percent of total domestic production by value, excluding variety meat exports.

Meat buyers from Japan, Mexico, South Korea, Taiwan, Hong Kong, other Asia Pacific countries, the Caribbean, the European Community and Russia, participated in the Foreign Buyers Conference. The conference featured USMEF's third annual product showcase, an event which brings foreign buyers and U.S. suppliers together to sample U.S. meat products and discuss foreign market needs.

Total U.S. beef, veal, prok, lamb, and variety meat exports have increased 208 percent since 1985, totaling a record $2.6 billion in 1991. This represents an increase of 18 percent as compared with 1990. (U.S. beef, veal and variety meat exports in 1991 hit an all time high of $2.1 billion, up to 200 percent since 1985. U.S. pork and variety meat exports have increased 252 percent since 1985, reaching a record $405 million in 1991.)

With each $1 billion in U.S. value-added exports providing an estimated 22,000 jobs, some 57,200 Americans earn their livelihoods supplying foreign markets with U.S. meat products.

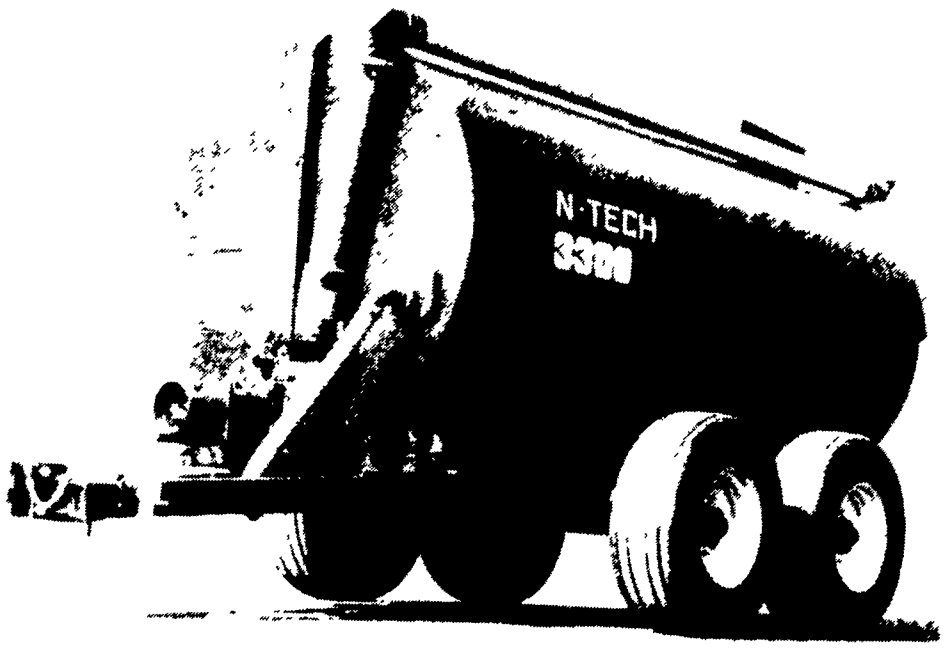
N-TECH '90s SLURRY TANKER



Round Tank
Stronger than oval. Prevents excessive shift of center of gravity found in oval tanks.

Large Filler Hatch - 30 by 30 inch

Brakes with Cab Control
Provides braking forward and reverse, uphill and downhill.
Visual brake monitor tells when brakes are off.

Top Spread Nozzle
30 to 40 foot spread pattern.
Large droplet pattern minimizes "fog" and drift characteristic of slinger spreaders. Eliminates unseen accidental discharge inherent with bottom valve slinger type tanks.

Forward Slope Design
Maintains drawbar weight as tank is emptied.

Front Mount Pump
Allows over top discharge.

Adjustable Axle Setting
Allows adjustable weight on drawbar.

Now Available With 4" Spindles And Semi-Trailer Brakes!

U. Of Md. Appoints Director

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Dr. Bryan H. Johnson will become acting Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station director when current director Robert A. Kennedy departs for Texas A&M University in August 1992.

"Having served as associate director since November 1989, Bryan is intimately acquainted with MAES programs and Maryland's agricultural and natural resource base," said Dr. Raymond J. Miller, president of the Maryland Institute for Agriculture and Natural Resources. "Thus I am fully confident that MAES, under Bryan's leadership, will continue its agricultural and environmental research initiatives throughout the University of Maryland System."

Johnson, 51, received his Ph.D. Degree in animal breeding and reproductive physiology from Oklahoma State University. Prior to coming to MAES, he was head of the animal science department at the University of Wyoming in Laramie.

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds

BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.

MIX WITH DRY FEEDS: BREWEX is found in commercial pelleted rations for dairy, hogs and poultry as an energy source to replace corn. BREWEX replaces corn on a pound for pound dry basis and provides for improved pellet durability, reduced mineral segregation, dust control and improved palatability in dairy rations.

ON-FARM MIXING

A commercial Jersey dairy farm, having over ten years of experience in feeding BREWEX to partially replace corn finds that

- BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
- BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
- BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
- BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

A Satisfied Customer...

JOHN R. RODGERS, of Belleville had three styles of fencing installed totaling a mile on his farm. John offers these comments. "I looked at others fencers and determined that Beaver Fence Systems had the people that could do a quality job and a quality fence to keep the cattle where I want them. The flexibility of the fence gives me full utilization of the land with maximum efficiency. The job was completed in two days including a barnyard fence, plus 6 and 4 wire pasture fencing."

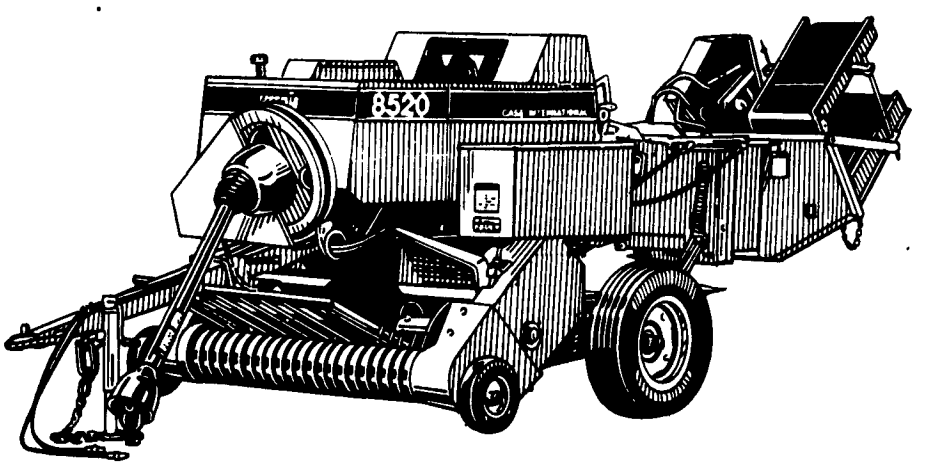
"Her" Choice



If Holsteins could talk, the conversation around the hay manger would be "Case IH Center Line Balers".

Why? More leaves per bale.

Our low profile pickup allows alfalfa hay to retain more dry leaves. We don't lift the windrow as high, saving leaves at the pickup. We also start to compress the hay before it enters the chamber to lock in leaves throughout the flake... leaves don't settle to the bottom and fall out the back of the baler to the degree of older style square balers.

More leaves means more milk, without increased overhead. Many studies show increased production of $1,000 per year over a milking herd of 100 with 2% leaf savings!

Case IH Center Line Balers...one of the quickest ways to increase milk production without adding cows. Improve your bottom line with improved leaf savings.

WORK WATCH

The Work Watch Is Back!

In the mid-1980's we sold hundreds of work watches to hard-working individuals like yourself who needed an accurate, dependable timepiece. They needed a watch that would withstand the dust, moisture, bumps, and temperatures encountered on the farm, in the orchard, and in the woods. Many who bought the work watch told us it was the best watch they had ever owned. Now, due to the past success and the present need, we are again offering the work watch through Lancaster Farming.

Our work watch has all the features needed to endure the punishment you will put it through. The WATER RESISTANT seal will protect your watch when you irrigate fields, fix broken water systems, get milk splashed on your arm while feeding calves, or walk the fence in the rain, to find out where your cattle are getting out. Being SHOCK RESISTANT, your work watch will continue to work when it is slapped by a cow's tail, a falling board, or the belt shield that your arm slams against when your wrench slips off the bolt. While your watch is scraped by branches, rubbed against walls, and knocked against machinery, the low profile, SCRATCH RESISTANT, glass crystal will resist the scratches and cracks that render watches unreadable. Finally, the BATTERY POWERED QUARTZ movement of your work watch is accurate to within 2 minutes per year, and does not need to be wound, meaning that your watch will be on time, all the time, without any effort on your part.

A final proof of the strength of this watch and of its suitability to your needs is the warranty. If your work watch stops running within FIVE YEARS of the date of purchase, the manufacturer will repair or replace your watch at no charge. This is one of the longest warranties in the watch industry. The manufacturer's confidence in this watch means that you can have confidence in its durability and can know that this is the only work watch you will need to buy for the next five years.

Organic Growers Twilight Meeting

PITTSTOWN, NJ — The first organic farmer's meeting at the Rutgers University Snyder Research and Extension Farm in Pittstown, Hunterdon County, will be held on Tuesday, July 21st, 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Sponsored by NOFA-NJ (Natural Organic Farmers Association of New Jersey) and Rutgers Cooperative Extension, the program will highlight organic research in progress at the college's 400-acre farm. Emily Brown Rosen, NOFA-NJ's new Assistant Technical Resource director will introduce the speakers.

Steve Reiners, RCE Vegetable Specialist, will explain studies comparing organic, non-organic and low-input methods of Tomato production. Another study is under way on fertility rates for sweet corn and tomatoes using alfalfa meal and blood meal as nitrogen sources. A three year rotation for corn, tomatoes, and pumpkins using organic fertilizers is also being studied.

Dan Kluchinski, Agricultural Agent for Mercer County, will describe his studies of sheet composting of leaves, with 3 and 6 inches worth of leaves applied to plots with corn, beans and a fall vegetable crop.

Don Prostak, Rutgers IPM Agent for Vegetables will explain his work on several vegetable crops looking for resistance to insect pests, testing alternative methods for corn earworm control, and a trial planting or pyrethrin-type of chrysanthemums inter-cropped with beans.

Joe Heckman, Rutgers Soils Specialist, will discuss an on-site soil test for nitrogen for sweet corn to be used prior to side-dressing with manure or conventional methods and determines nitrogen availability during the season.

Dean Polk, Rutgers IPM Agent for Fruit, will describe the studies under way on a block of disease resistant apple trees, with a limited spray program being tested, as well as an organic spray program being tested at the Cream Ridge research farm.

Other projects on view include a new leaf wetness monitoring system to predict timing for disease sprays on tomatoes, biological control of alfalfa insects, and the 7 wire electric deer fence that enclosed about half the farm.

There's no charge for this program, but please call NOFA-NJ if you plan to attend. 609-737-6848.

For Years, Biologists Have Been Altering Plants

GOLDENVALLEY, Minn. — Reports of major developments in molecular biology have led many people to believe that the genetic alteration of plants is relatively recent.

In fact, today's plant biotechnology is an extension and refinement of age-old classical plant breeding. It's the result of a great expansion in scientific knowledge, which blossomed with heightened understanding of enzyme chemistry and molecular genetics during the past three decades.

Molecular plant biologists now use recombinant DNA (rDNA) to develop new combinations of genes by splicing together pieces of DNA from various species and organizms.

Plant biotechnology offers advantages that are not available from traditional plant breeding. These benefits can be broadly characterized as economic, environmental, and technical.

• Economic Benefits• Plant biotechnology can favorably influence the economics of agriculture for farmers by reducing front-end production costs. It can also improve the quality and quantity of crop yield by providing plants with in-bred resistance to various diseases and insects.

• Environmental Benefits• The selective alteration of plants could reduce or eliminate the use of certain chemical treatments that are slow to break down in soil and groundwater. Newer chemicals could be paired with transformed plants to limit overall environmental impact.

• Technical Benefits • Plant biotechnology offers increased precision over traditional plant breeding methods because it enables scitentists to identify and alter specific genes. Zeroing in on specific genes may also allow scientist to produce new plant varieties more rapidly. Most promising is plant biotechnology's capacity for broadening the accessible gene pool. With rDNA, scientists can introduce new and useful traits into plants from sources that are unavailable through traditional breeding.

The genetic transformation of plants involves extensive research by scientist in the laboratory and under actual field conditions. Although faster and more precise than traditional plant breeding, the technology is complex, dependent on plant, insect, biology, and genetics experts to determine which genetic transfers are both feasible and beneficial.

Once the research leaves the lab and enters the field, it is subject to approvals from various federal and state regulatory bodies. Field trails are subject to federal review; most must be approved by the United States Department of Agriculture-Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (USDA-APHIS).

If approved, the USDA issues a permit establishing conditions for the field trial. The USDA also conducts on-site inspections during the course of in-field research and requires reports of research findings. Individual states have varying regulatory requirements for in-field testing as well.

Northup King invests approximately 10 percent of sales revenue in this research each year. The company directs 26 research stations in the United States, Canada, Europe, Mexico, and South America.

In 1989, Northup King conducted its first field trial at research facilities in Stanton, Minn. In the trial, genetically-altered alfalfa was successfully paired with a new and highly-biodegradable herbicide.

In 1992, Northup King received approval to conduct additional trails involving its key product, corn. Two separate trials, conducted at Stanton, Minn., and St. Joseph, Ill., will field-test corn genetically-engineerd to resist European corn borer and maize dwarf mosaic virus (MDMV). The European corn borer and MDMV are responsible for hundreds of millions of dollars in lost crops annually.

McNamara Wins Agway Scientist Award

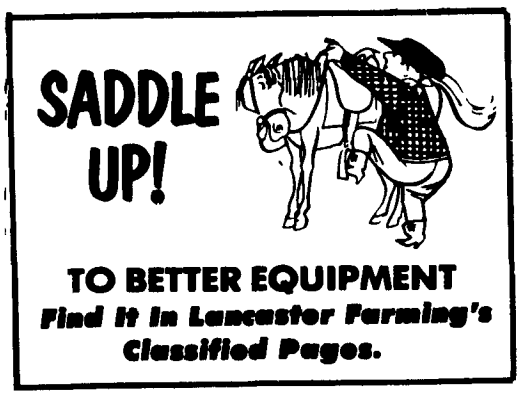
COLUMBUS, OHIO — The recipient of the 1992 Agway Inc. Young Scientist Award is John P. McNamara, Associate Professor of Animal Sciences at Washington State University, who is recognized for his original and significant contributions to the understanding of the regulation of adipose tissue metabolism in the bovine animal.

The award, consisting of a monetary stipend and a plaque, was received by McNamara during the awards ceremony of the 87th Annual Meeting of the American Dairy Science Association held at The Ohio State University, Columbus.

McNamara's research has important implications for the practical feeding of dairy cattle. He used in vitro techniques in conjunction with animal experiments to reveal specific differences in patterns of lipid metabolism between dairy cattle selected for low and high milk production. He demonatrated the dependence of adipose hormone-sensitive lipase activity on mammary gland activity, and he has clarified the effects of independence changes in energy intake and milk production on adipose tissue metabolism.

McNamara was born in 1954 in Oak Park, Illinois. He attended Iowa State University, and then he transferred to the University of Illinois where he received the B.S. degree in agriculture science in 1976 and the M.S. degree in dairy science in 1978. After receiving his Ph. D. degree in nutrition from University of Georgia in 1982, McNamara spent a year as a research associate at University of Florida. In 1983, he accepted a teaching and research position in the Department of Animal Sciences at Washington State University, where he received the college's 1990 Award for Excellence in Research.

Agway Inc. has sponsored the Young Scientist Award since 1983. Agway Inc. is a farm supply and food marketing cooperative directly engaged in product manufacturing, processing, and the marketing of commodities for its farmer members and other patrons in 12 northeastern states.



Blair County Names Extension Director

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Dr. Phil E. Rzewnicki has been named county extension director for Penn State Cooperative Extension in Blair County. In addition to his administrative responsibilities, Rzewnicki will help growers in Blair and Huntingdon counties with agronomy and cropping systems.

Prior to joining Penn State, Rzewnicki was assistant to the dean of and director for University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension, where he provided administrative and program planning leadership in agricultural profitability and rural revitalization.

Rzewnicki also served as county extension director and agronomy agent for eight years in Cuming County in northeast Nebraska.

In 1990, he received the Excellence in Team Programming Award from Nebraska Cooperative Extension. He received the Ag Achievement Award from the National Association of County Agricultural Agents in 1987. In 1983, he received the Nebraska/Kansas/Colorado Extension Wildlife Award.

Rzewnicki earned his bachelor's degree in biological sciences from Northern Illinois University in 1971 before serving as a medical lab specialist with the U.S. Air Force from 1971 to 1975.

He earned a master's degree in natural resources policy and management from the University of Michigan in 1977 and a master's degree in crop and soil sciences from Michigan State University in 1979.

While completing his Ph.D. in agronomy at the University of Nebraska, Rzewnicki emphasized on-farm experiment designs and implications of involving farmers and extension agents in applied agronomy research.

Rzewnicki is a member of the American Society of Agronomy, the Crop Science Society of America and Toastmasters International.

Axial-Flow Combines
SIMPLY MORE PRODUCTIVE IN THE FIELD

Over the past 14 years the Case IH axial-flow combines have proven themselves to be more productive than the combines previously owned by our customers. In tall crops, short crops or down crops; bumper crops or drought crops the axial-flow combines put more crop in the bin and, therefore, return more market dollars to you. The Case IH axial-flow is simply more productive in the field where the bragging stops.

HOOBER: Axial-Flow production specialists

1. Every combine Hoober sells is started in the field by a professional combine mechanic; experienced in setting and adjusting for all common crops.
2. Hoober's professional combine mechanics drive fully equipped combine service trucks, stocked with commonly used wearing parts. When called to service or repair an axial-flow combine, they carry with them the tools and equipment to do the job and get you back to the field fast.
3. Hoober's Parts Department has the largest combine parts inventory in the East. Daily pick-ups at the Case IH Parts depot help to provide fast emergency parts availability. Hoober's expert combine PARTS service provides you minimum downtime and maximum productivity.

HOOBER PEOPLE MAKE AXIAL-FLOW COMBINES PRODUCE FOR YOU!

By servicing over 200 Axial-Flow Combines, The people at C.B. Hoober & Sons, Inc. know how to make these Combines reach their maximum productivity.

Talk to an owner of a combine serviced by HOOBER'S COMBINE PROFESSIONALS. They'll tell you how they produce.

CAN YOU AFFORD NOT TO OWN AN AXIAL-FLOW FROM HOOBER?

The Reason Axial-Flow Combines Are More Productive - THE ROTOR!

The Single Rotor design is SIMPLE!

Only a single rotor to thresh and separate. Eliminates the straw-walker assemblies common to conventional combines. Less moving parts means less maintenance, less downtime.

The Single Rotor Design is HIGHER QUALITY GRAIN

Multiple threshing action of axial-flow reduces kernal damage and holds elevator dockage to a minimum.

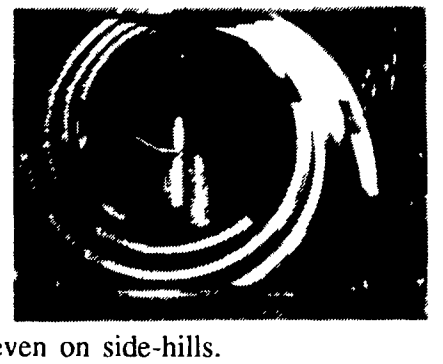
The Single Rotor Design Is MORE PRODUCTIVITY!

When your crops are ripe and ready to harvest, Axial-Flow allows you to move faster than with a conventional combine. The rotor's large throat means no bottle-necks up front. You'll be able to harvest at top speed for maximum productivity, even on side-hills.



GREAT Financing Plans For Qualified Buyers:

1) 3.9% Interest for 42 Months Followed by 6.9% Interest For 30 Months - A Total of 6 YEARS For Extremely Affordable CASH FLOW

IXL Anti-Friction Metal Conditioner

Anti-friction Metal Conditioner
Science brings a new dimension to Anti-Friction

An oil additive metal conditioner product ahead of its time, IXL will give your equipment priceless protection. IXL gives protection far superior to just oil or lubricants. IXL is specifically designed to be used in: (NEW) and (USED) gasoline & diesel engines, compressors, automatic & manual transmissions, hydraulics, gear boxes, bearings of all types, turbos, pumps, and much more. IXL is a metal conditioner which treats surface metals 3 to 5 microns deep, thereby making the metal surfaces harder, denser and smoother. These results are minimum metal wear, giving maximum engine and machine life. IXL reduces heat, friction, and wear, up to 60% without changing tolerances, reducing friction will release energy previously expended to overcome ordinary mechanical resistance. This energy is now available as a positive force, working to increase power, performance and fuel savings. IXL also helps maintain and recondition seals and gaskets, by keeping these items pliable, firm, and flexible. It will help prevent leaks, however IXL is not a lubricant fortifier, such as PTFE, Moly, or graphite. IXL is biodegradable, NON-TOXIC and environmentally safe. IXL is one of the highest quality products on the market today. IXL is satisfaction guaranteed or your money back.

FREE YOURSELF FROM SPREADER CHAINS AND SAVE MONEY

The proven Hydra-Spread design can free you from the grief and maintenance of spreader apron chains for good!

This low maintenance spreader features solid poly boards both on the sides and the floor for slippery, no-stick performance. Hydraulic push power replaces the extensive mechanism needed in ordinary spreaders.'

Why pay more for yesterday's ideas and designs? The design of tomorrow is PRICED RIGHT and will be on the job for years. We deliver to your farm.

ORDER YOUR NEW SILO WITH A FIBERDOME CHUTE OR REPLACE YOUR OLD WORN OUT CHUTE

fiberdome SILO CHUTE

made with fiberglass, the material of the future — and proven in the past —

The Fiberdome chute is designed and engineered to be installed on most types of silos. Its structure allows it to withstand the toughest beating the weather elements or silo unloading systems can possibly dish out.

The chute is constructed in full 7½' sections to minimize the number of joints. Connecting joints have a 2½" tongue and groove design to keep feed in and water out. The large ribbed construction adds stability and strength.

Fiberglass is durable, corrosion-proof, attractive and translucent, allowing sunlight to pass through. Sunlight quickly dries interior moisture in the chute. The hard gleaming gelcote surface will remain for many years.

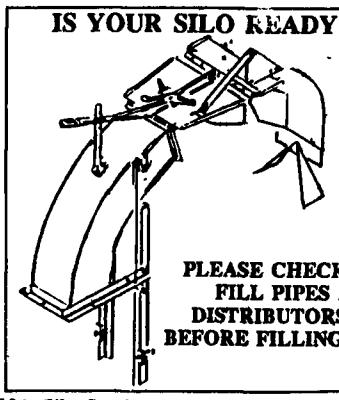
IS YOUR SILO READY TO BE FILLED WITH GRASS SILAGE?



PLEASE CHECK YOUR FILL PIPES AND DISTRIBUTORS NOW BEFORE FILLING SEASON

S&S Silo Service prepares the silo surface by using a 3,000 lb. pressure washer, thus making the silo moist, making a much better surface to bond shotcrete. After shotcreting, S&S always takes away any roughness by applying a steel trowel finish.

The excellent bonding of shotcrete to the silo will keep out moisture and prevent mold from growing on the side of the silo.

WILL SERVICE 3 TO 4 DAYS OR LESS ON MOST JOBS

ARE YOU FEEDING YOUR HOGS TO THEIR GENETIC POTENTIAL?

To Determine Your Lean Gain Potential Rating

1. Know Your Hog's Backfat At The 10th Rib
2. Calculate Days to Market 40 Lb. to 240 Lb.

LGPR RATING CHART

Days 40 lb. - 240 lb.	BACKFAT (10th Rib, Inches) 0.8	0.9	1.0	1.1	1.2	1.3	1.4	1.5	1.6
90	140	140	140	140	140
95	140	140	140	140	120	120
100	140	120	120	120	120	120	120
105	120	120	120	120	120	120	120	120
110	120	120	120	120	120	120	120	120	100
115	120	120	120	120	120	120	100	100	100
120		120	120	120	100	100	100	100	100

130				100	100	100	100	100	100
135					100	100	100	100	100

Once you have determined the LGPR rating (140, 120 or 100 program) then decide the number of rations in the gro/fin period (2,3 or 4 feeds). Do you split sex feed? Remember, nutrition, genetics, finishing facilities, and management determine your hog's cutability and your farm's profitability!
